FINISHED THEIR SESSION.

County Board Adjourns after Six Days' Work.

The county board adjourned on Wednesday after having put in six days' work at routine business. The date of the next meeting will be the second Tuesday in February when the report of the finance committee will be considered.

One of the most important matters taken up by the board was the equalization matter. The valuation in most instances was greatly changed as will be seen by the following:

	1899	1900
Total county	$1,945,000	$2,244,900
Marshfield City	280,000	1,150,000
Marshfield Town	44,000	131,500
Grand Rapids City	350,000	995,000
Auburndale Vill.	15,000	42,500
Auburndale Town	64,000	203,900
Lincoln	83,000	250,300
Rock	72,000	228,300
Richfield	59,000	181,500

Many were inclined to kick at the above figures, but it will not make taxes any higher as a general thing.

The matter of dividing the towns of Wood and Vesper as mentioned last week was discussed but no action was taken on the matter.

PUSHING THE WORK.

Northwestern Company have Nearly Finished Survey to Marshfield.

The Northwestern has the survey between this city and Marshfield nearly completed. The survey is carried along the east side of the M. & S.
E. road until the brick yard is reached where the new route crosses the old line and continues so until Marshfield is reached.

Mr. Cook, the company's representative here, has been buying land along the right of way as fast as the titles could be looked up and papers made out. Among the tracts purchased during the past week is that belonging to the McMillan Bros., for which the company paid $5,000, the present owners to retain the buildings, other pieces of property purchased by the company are D. D. Conway's back lot, lots owned by Chas. Briere, Wm.
Scott, Mrs. Ernestine Fontaine, F. J.
Wood and the Lyon estate.

Forestry Work.

The field work of the Division of Forestry of the department of agriculture, which has been carried on in many parts of the country by parties of different sizes since last May, has now been largely completed for 1900.
This summer's work was carried on in New York, Tennessee, Missouri, Colorado, South Dakota, Arkansas,
Arizona, Washington, Oregon, California, a number of tree planting states of the middle west, and, in a small way, in other states besides.
Much new and valuable information has been collected, and a very large number of surveys has been made, of the results of which it will soon be possible to make practical use.

The work which has thus been going on in the field consisted of making forest surveys and of gathering measurements and information about growth, stand, reproduction, etc.
Much of it, as that in the Black Hills
Forest Reserve, in the Adirondacks, and on the tract of the Sawyer & Austin Lumber company in Arkansas, is preparatory to the preparation of what are called "working plans," or plans for the management and utilization of given tracts of timber. These are based not on any general rules, but on a thorough knowledge of the peculiarities of the forest on each tract, of the market and transportation facilities of the regions in which they are situated, and of the financial necessities of each case. The rest of the work of the field parties has been more of the character of investigations as, for instance, the examination of the influence of forest cover on water-flow which was made on the watershed of the Arrowhead river in southern California, the studies of the habits of growth and reproduction of the two most important lumber trees of the Pacific coast—the Red Fir and the Redwood, and the survey of the results of tree planting undertakings which have been carried on in the northern part of the Mississippi Valley.

During the coming winter the agents of the Division will spend most of their time in working up the results of the summer's surveys and in preparing reports on them, although there will doubtless be some field work as well.

Books Wanted.

The commissioners of the library want to obtain a complete file of the Forum and anyone who has copies of the magazine issued before 1905 are requested to communicate with Mrs.
Evans, the librarian. As there will probably be no one who will have a complete file, all who have books to dispose of are requested to speak.

A Card.

We, the undersigned, do hereby agree to refund the money on a 50 cent bottle of Greene's Warranted Syrup of Tar if it fails to cure your cough or cold. We also guarantee a 25 cent bottle to prove satisfactory or money refunded.

Thanksgiving Day.

Next Thursday, November 29, occurs that day so dear to the memory of all American people and to many who have adopted America as a home.
Dear to many American because there clusters around the memory of it many scenes and occurrences that were the dearest of a lifetime; dear to others because it seems a hallowed day, the religious observance of which is no more than a kind creator is entitled to.

There are people so low in the social scale that they sneer at the idea of giving thanks for favors received on this earth, and make light of the feeling expressed by others, but luckily these are few, and their demoralizing influence is not a very weighty matter compared with the onward course of a nation.

We sincerely hope that everyone of our readers may have something to be thankful for. The past year has been one of general prosperity and while some of us may have had experiences that were not exactly to our liking, still these were only in the nature course of events and should be treated accordingly. And if you have plenty and to spare and if your neighbor be needy, try to make the day such a one for him that he can be thankful with you.

Rapidly Recovering.

Ernest Quackenbush of City Point, who was shot while hunting deer
about a week ago, has about recovered from his injuries.

Mr. Quackenbush received his injuries in a remarkable manner. He and a friend were engaged in carrying a deer out of the woods when some hunter saw the animal and shot at it with a load of buckshot. One of the shot entered Mr. Quackenbush's head, the missile striking over the left eye and going in toward the right side of the head. Dr. Pomainville was sent for and although it was impossible to locate the shot, the man is about all right and able to be about and attend to his work.

The accident occurred at Spaulding, where Mr. Quackenbush was hunting with a friend. When the man shot both men dropped to the ground and prepared to give their assailant a dose of the same medicine if he did not desist, but he stopped shooting as soon as he discovered his mistake.

High School Notes.

All is quiet along the Wisconsin
this week. Pupils are extremely busy committing to paper what they have acquired during the past six weeks.
This week ends the first term of this school year.

The first question now required in all the examinations this time and in time to come is neatness and composition, something greatly needed in both schools.

A. W. Bryant spent a part of Thursday morning looking over the work.

An Unusual Experience.

Pat Corcoran met with an accident at Port Edwards on Sunday that he will not care to have repeated right away. He was at work repairing the dam, when he lost his footing and fell into the water. The current was swift and he was unable to do anything against it and was carried through a break in the dam. When rescued he was about done up, not only from the effects of the water, but also had sustained numerous cuts and bruises.

Death of Mabelle Whitrock.

Mabelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs.
Chas. Whitrock died Saturday evening of spinal meningitis, aged two years and three months. The funeral took place the following Tuesday Rev. J.
L. Bittner, officiating.

Little Mabelle was the life and light of the home with her sweet ways and joyous prattle. Kind friends and neighbors sympathize deeply with the bereaved parents in their sad afflic-tion.

Marriage Licenses.

The following marriage licenses were granted during the past week:

Joseph Matejovitz to Blanche
Janousek, both of Milladore.

Gottlieb Fitz to Fredericka Brown,
both of Nekoosa.

Peter Hey to Alice Clear, both of Marshfield.

Charles Schelpaper to Mary Breit,
both of Marshfield.

Wm. G. Everts, of Milladore to Monica Smith, of Auburndale.

Anton Billmeyer and Mary A. Jeffrey both of Grand Rapids.

ILLEGAL HUNTING.

Complaint by Many That Deer have been Slaughtered Illegally.

Complaints have been coming in since the close of the deer season to the effect that many deer have been slaughtered this fall in an illegal manner. In some instances the deer have been hunted with dogs and in others they have been killed out of season. Those who claim to know say that these are not just isolated cases, but happen every day and the general
verdict is that it should be stopped.

Some say there are not enough game wardens now existing are not situated in a manner that will allow them to attend to the matter. It is certainly a remarkable state of affairs that these conditions should exist without the authorities being able to stop them, and in fact there be nothing done to abate the evil. If lovers of sport would make it a point to see that guilty parties are arrested and convicted the trouble would soon be stopped. If the hunters who take pleasure in hunting deer will not take the trouble to have the guilty ones arrested, they certainly cannot expect men, who never care for hunting to waste any time stopping the trouble.

It has been proposed by some and it is understood that an effort will be made to induce the legislature to pass a law by which a part of the license money can be retained at home and used to defray the expenses of more game wardens, and have the officers so distributed that they will be able to keep track of what is going on.

From all reports there have been more deer killed this year in the county than ever before which would indicate that they were plentiful and if the law was observed as it now reads there would be good hunting in the county for many years to come.

BIG MATCH IS ON.

Beell and Adamson Again to Meet at Marshfield.

Marshfield News: The great wrestling match between Fred Beell of this city and Ed Adamson of Indianapolis is now a go. The men will come together for the fourth time in a battle royal. About $1,000 will go to the winner as a result of the evening's work, the largest purse ever contested for in central Wisconsin.

Last week the News, on behalf of Fred Beell, sent a counter challenge to Ed Adamson, enclosing signed articles of agreement. These were returned yesterday with the addition of Adamson's signature which makes the match a certainty, a forfeit of $100 having been previously placed in the hands of Adam Paulus, stake holder.

The contest will be catch-as-catch-can style; two points down; pin falls to count; no holds barred; both men to weigh in at no more than 135 pounds on afternoon of match; best three out of five falls to win; the match to be for $500 a side; the winner to take 75 per cent, and the loser 25 per cent. of the gate receipts; Ed Adamson is guaranteed at least $75 win or lose for expenses; the referee to be chosen one day before the match; to be held in Marshfield on Saturday night, Dec.
15th, at 9 o'clock p. m.

Few believed that Adamson would have the temerity to tackle Beell with all holds open, after being thrown a few months ago with Beell's favorite hold barred. It only goes as further evidence of the Indianapolis athlete's remarkable pluck and perseverance.
It is plain that Adamson's desire is to regain the losses of the two previous matches with Beell in one grand conquest, as it was he who named the size of the purse.

With two men so evenly matched as Beell and Adamson, no man can pick the winner with any degree of certainty. Faulty condition on the day scheduled or a slight accident during the contest would do the business for the unfortunate one.

The sporting fraternity of central Wisconsin may prepare to witness one of the greatest wrestling matches ever held in the state.

Ir. R. Hicks 1901 Almanac.

Whatever may be said of the scientific causes upon which the Rev. Ir. R.
Hicks bases his yearly forecasts of weather, it is a remarkable fact that specific warnings of every great storm, flood, cold wave and drought, have been plainly printed in his now famous Almanac for many years. The latest startling proof of this fact was the destruction of Galveston, Texas, on the very day named by Prof. Hicks in his 1900 Almanac, as one of disaster by storm along the gulf coasts. The 1901 Almanac, by far the finest, most complete and beautiful yet published, is now ready. This remarkable book of near two hundred pages, splendidly illustrated with charts and half-tone engravings, goes as a premium to every subscriber who pays one dollar a year for Prof. Hicks' Journal, Word and Works. The Almanac alone is sent prepaid for only 25 cents. Order

A PROMINENT LADY

FIRST T-RAILS IN AMERICA.

Speaks in Highest Terms of Peruna as a Catarrh Cure.

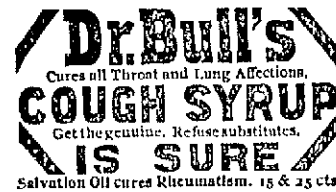

Mrs. M. A. Theatro, member Rebecca Lodge, Iowa Lodge, also member of Woman's Relief Corps, writes the following letter from 1835 Jackson street, Minneapolis, Minn.:

Mrs. M. A. Theatro, Minneapolis, Minn.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.
Gentlemen:—As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I have been troubled with chronic catarrh for over six years. I had tried several remedies without relief. A lodge friend advised me to try Peruna, and I began to use it faithfully before each meal. Since then I have always kept it in the house. I am now in better health than I have been in over twenty years, and I feel sure my catarrh is permanently cured.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. As soon as Peruna removes systemic catarrh the digestion becomes good, nerves strong, and trouble vanishes. Peruna strengthens weak nerves, not by temporarily stimulating them, but by removing the cause of weak nerves—catarrh. This is the only cure that lasts. Remove the cause, nature will do the rest. Peruna removes the cause. Address The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a book treating of catarrh in its different phases and stages, also a book entitled "Health and Beauty," written especially for women.

FADED IN HER YOUTH

Pretty faces and graceful forms of young women! Why is it they are so soon replaced by plainness and languor? It is because the young girl just entering into womanhood does not know how to take care of herself and has no one competent to instruct her. It is not necessary that there should be anything weakening or wearying about the obligations of a female organism. Parents of young girls should inform themselves and prevent their dear ones from making costly errors.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA for the Blood and Nerves

Dr. Greene's Nervura Mood and nerve remedy, is just entering the first stage of womanhood. It prepares the system in every way to act normally. It enriches the blood supply, and keeps the nerves calm and steady. Fortified with this great medicine, all the womanly duties may be undertaken and experienced without the slightest jeopardy to health. It preserves the gifts of nature and assists their development into glowing, healthful beauty.

Mrs. MARY FRANCES LITTLE, of 2 Hunter Alley, Rochester, N. Y., says:

"I was very pale and delicate—had no color. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura, blood and nerve remedy, and now I am well and strong, my face is plump, and cheeks red, and my complexion pure."

Mrs. WILLIAM BARTLE, 239 East 37th St., New York City, says:

"Dr. Greene's Nervura made a wonderful improvement in my health, and that dark, sickly look left my face. My friends kindly know me. I have gained flesh and am like a different person."

The nervousness in women which invariably comes with pain is of itself certain to stop the development of beauty in face and figure. Excited nerves make sharp lines and hasty speech.

The beautiful curves which make women so attractive are not possible when the female organism is out of order, as it surely is when discomfort and pain are always or even periodically present. It is only necessary to look in the faces of young women everywhere to see that this must be so. Else why are they so pale and thin?

GET FREE ADVICE FROM DR. GREENE

Real beauty is rare. It belongs to perfect health. It is possible to every woman who takes the matter in hand intelligently. Get advice from Dr. Greene, the great specialist in these matters. He will tell you why all this is so, and show you how to avoid the stumbling blocks that bar woman's way to happiness. You may consult Dr. Greene without cost by calling or writing to him at his office, 35 West 14th Street, New York City. Don't throw away your beauty. Write to Dr. Greene to-day.

RICH MAN DIES IN PAUPERS' WARD.

A West Superior Man was Not Aware that He was Worth $250,000.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Johann Mueller died in the paupers' ward at St. Mary's hospital in December, 1898. It has just developed that he owned forty acres of land on the Mesaba range, in which he had invested the savings of years, is worth $250,000. The Carnegie interests now have an option on the land for that figure. A Catholic priest had a mortgage on the land for $800. Relatives of Mueller in Germany are trying to prove their claim to the estate.

HISTORIC LANDMARK OF STATE IS BURNED.

Old Ludington Company's Hotel at Mission Point Once Occupied by Isaac Stephenson.

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The N. Ludington company's boarding house was totally destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is about $50,000, with an insurance of $1800. It was built in 1876 and had many historical incidents connected with it. Samuel J. Tilden was a guest in it once on his way north to look at his copper-mining properties. It was located on Mission point, where there was a government trading post eighty-six years ago. Ex-Congressman Isaac Stephenson resided in it in the early days and three of his children were born there. It will not be rebuilt.

SHOWED GREAT NERVE.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Charles Byrd, a brakeman on the North-Western road, fell from the top of a freight train, as it was pulling out of the city, about 8:30 o'clock last evening. When he struck the ground his right foot lay across the rail and it was cut off at the ankle.

The accident was not seen by any of the other trainmen and Byrd lay where he fell until a northbound train came along about fifteen minutes later, when the injured man attracted the attention of the trainmen by waving his lantern. Byrd is about 30 years of age and has a family at Baraboo. He was walking over the top of the cars, which were icy with sleet from a storm then in progress, and in passing from one car to another he slipped and went down.

WILL BUILD A NATATORIUM.

Mr. Stout's Latest Public Enterprise for Menomonee.

Menomonee, Wis., Nov. 19.—Senator Stout has awarded the general contract for his proposed natatorium and gymnasium. The building will be a model one in every way. The contract is given to the H. C. Worthy Construction company of Appleton for $112,500. A number of special contracts which will bring the price to about $200,000 are yet to be made. The work will begin May 1 and be completed by October 1. The building will be 100 x 150 feet, first story above basement. It will be constructed of red brick with terra cotta trimmings, tiled and floored, and will be heated by steam. It will serve as a natatorium, gymnasium, bathhouse, bowling alley, billiard room, etc.

SIX GIRLS ARE ARRESTED.

Taken in Charge with Two Boys at Baraboo for Stealing Brass.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A Chicago & North Western railway detective, J. E. Harris, caught the arrest of six girls and two boys, charged with stealing brass goods from the company.

FIVE DOLLAR BILL ISSUED IN 1776.

Valuable Relic of the Revolutionary War Days Owned by Oconomowoc Man.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A $5 bill, issued according to an act of the Continental Congress in 1776, is a valuable relic in the hands of C. E. Palmer of this city. It is yellowish in color and measures 2 1/2 by 3 1/2 inches. In the face of the bill is a seal-like design, in the Latin phrase, "Sustine et Abstinere." The following words also appear on the face: "This bill entitles the bearer to receive five Spanish milled dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver, according to a resolution of Congress, passed at Philadelphia February 17, 1776." On the opposite side and nearly in the center is an imperfect cut showing two tobacco leaves, one larger than the other. Below the cut is printed "Philadelphia: Printed by Hall and Sellers, 1776." The piece of money was a gift to Mr. Palmer by his grandfather, L. C. Palmer.

BOY ROBBED STORE FIFTEEN TIMES.

He Has Been Burglarizing Place in La Crosse for the Last Four Months.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Otto Soupe, aged 18 years, has confessed to robbing a grocery store kept by Oberst Brothers, fifteen times. The thefts were noticed some time ago, but every means tried failed to land the burglar. One night a man slept in the store to see if he could not catch the thief and the burglar came in and lugged off his booty without even awakening the detective. Saturday night Officer Horschak noticed a bunch of bananas moving suspiciously in the window as he was passing and stopped to investigate. The result was the arrest of Soupe. He said that he had been making regular visits to the store for the past four months and had also entered other places.

A 400-POUND BABY.

Elephant Born at the Ringling Brothers' Winter Quarters in Baraboo.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A baby elephant weighing 400 pounds was born at Ringling Bros' winter quarters this morning. This is an event which seldom occurs in captivity and has never before occurred in Wisconsin.

JUDGE BARCLAY IS DEAD.

Jackson County Jurist Dies at Home in Black River Falls.

Black River Falls, Wis., Nov. 19.—David Barclay, county judge of Jackson County, died Saturday night after several weeks' illness, aged 64 years. He was born in Canada, June 14, 1838, and came to Jackson county in 1898. He held the offices of town clerk and justice of the peace and county judge for the past seven years. He was passing and stopped to investigate. The result was the arrest of Soupe. He said that he had been making regular visits to the store for the past four months and had also entered other places.

Miss Bertha Strong, Appleton.

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 19.—Miss Bertha Strong, the oldest teacher in length of service in the public schools of this city, died Saturday night after a long illness, aged 84 years. She was born in England, and had been connected for twenty years with the city of Appleton.

SCARLET FEVER IN SCHOOL.

Child Ill with Disease at Oshkosh. Physicians Held Examination.

Oshkosh, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—At the opening of the sixth ward school this morning four physicians were in attendance to examine the children. One child developed case of scarlet fever was discovered and seven children with sore throats were sent home.

HE LOVED THE WOMAN.

The Way a Pembine Man Showed His Affection.

BULLET IN HIS HEAD.

Choked Woman and Pounded Husband When He Interfered—Now in Jail at Marinette.

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Charles Messenger of Pembine, commonly known as "Dutch," is in the county jail here with a bullet wound in his head and charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm. His arrest was the result of a row in the saloon of Frank Bush. Messenger came in the place, picked up a row with Bush's wife and attempted to choke her, when the husband ran to her rescue. Messenger attacked him with a cuspidor, maiming him in a terrible manner. Mrs. Bush then ran to a backroom and secured a revolver. She fired at Messenger and the bullet grazed his skull. The wound is not a dangerous one. Bush is in a precarious state as a result of the pounding given him by Messenger. Love for Mrs. Bush is said to have prompted Messenger to do his desperate work.

DEATH OF OLD ENGINEER

Elisha E. Thompson of Madison was Injured in Wauwatosa Bridge Wreck.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Elisha E. Thompson, a veteran engineer of the Milwaukee road, died at his home in this city, aged 69 years. In 1855 he came to Wisconsin to take a position as engineer on the St. Paul system. He came to Madison in 1861, and this has been the home of the family ever since. About twenty-one years ago Mr. Thompson was injured in an accident, his engine going through a bridge at Wauwatosa. About the same time he was affected by creeping paralysis. Mr. Thompson is survived by his widow and one son, Charles Thompson, and four brothers and one sister living in Vermont. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

CAN'T GET JUSTICE.

West Superior Has No Facilities for Handling Admiralty Cases—Deputy Marshal Wanted.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—There is a great lack of facilities provided here for handling admiralty cases. The matter has just been brought up again by an instance involving some sailors who came before the United States court commissioner and demanded a warrant for their captain who had, they alleged, withheld their pay. The boat was to sail within a few hours and the commissioner was compelled to inform the men he could do nothing for them because there is no deputy marshal near here and the marshal would not have time to come from Madison. The commissioner states that he has this season turned away twenty-five or thirty similar cases for similar reason.

TWO BADLY INJURED.

Fifteen Big Logs Fall on Woodsman at Marinette—Miraculous Escape from Death.

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Joseph Timbert and Patrick Kane, two woodsman, were seriously injured while working logs yesterday. The skid logs and about fifteen big logs came down on them. Their escape from death was miraculous. Timbert had one leg fractured and sustained other serious injuries. Kane had an ankle fractured and it is feared has sustained serious internal injuries.

SUSPECTS ARE ARRESTED

Sheriff Working on the Eau Claire Assault Case—Two Men in the Toils.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Sheriff Chrysler arrived from Menomonie today with young man giving name of Frank Brown and claiming St. Paul as his home. He is suspected of committing the murderous assault of W. C. Johnson last night. He protests his innocence, but has been locked up. The sheriff went on to Fall Creek, where another suspect has been arrested.

ANGUISH CAUSES SUICIDE.

Ashland Man Takes Poison Because of Financial Troubles.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 20.—A. J. Kerr, an old and respected citizen of this place, was found in a cheap lodging house last evening. A cheap bottle that had contained carbolic acid was found by his side. In a letter to his son, a society young man of this city, the parent had written that the load of responsibility caused by financial hardships, together with a horrible mental anguish which he had suffered for days was the cause of his action. Mr. Kerr had taken a contract to cut cedar and the reverses which he met with were many.

LON- DISTANCE DIPLOMACY.

The Telegraph Has Added to Its Complexity—Used to Misdread.

In this year of "Conger dispatches," trans-Pacific cable projects and long-distance diplomacy, an incident connected with the early days of the electric telegraph may have repetition. Mr. Louis Adolphe Thiers, afterwards President of the French republic, was even then a veteran in the public service of his nation, and had little to learn of the ways of the world. To him came a young attaché, full of enthusiasm over the new era which telegraphy should usher in. There were to be no more international misunderstandings. The long delays of the post were annihilated, and the truth of any diplomatic situation could be known almost instantaneously in all capitals of Europe.

To his glowing vision the chief obstacle to international peace had been swept away by the wonderful invention. Thiers heard him to the end of his rhapsody, but called him to a word. "Millennium, monsieur," he said, "will control the telegraph within a decade? As we recall the history of a half-century of telegraphy, and consider how the Morse alphabet has been used to spell out lies, to throw the masses into a panic, to mislead and confuse public opinion and to influence governmental policies for evil, the significance of the astute minister's saying is readily apparent. Indeed, the part played by the telegraph in the lightning diplomatic strategy which precipitated the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 is ample warrant for the ill-boding remark—Chautauquin.

New Use for Peat.

A large Dublin manufacturer has a room entirely furnished with Irish peat. The carpets on the floors, the curtains at the windows and the paper on the wall are made from this substance. For years he has experimented with the material, which is now very largely exported as fuel, and he has discovered that from it is possible to produce almost any kind of fabric. The process is simple—the fibers, which are strong and tough, being extracted and woven like cotton or silk. The fabrics have the toughness of linen and the warmth of wool. Blankets made of them are found to excel in warmth and lightness anything yet discovered.

Germany in World Politics.

The German empire has left its period of evolution behind it and has entered upon its epoch of growth, says Sig. Crisp in the Chicago Tribune. Thirty years ago the task consisted in laying the foundation of the structure of the empire and in cementing it together with blood and iron. Then came a period of blissful work devoted to the inner completion of the structure. After that had been finished new tasks presented themselves to the new generation, and it is merely a sign of health and strength that the living generation of the German people bravely devotes itself to the solution of all these problems which are at present comprised in the words "world politics."

Knowing Where to Find It.

Education, it has been said, is not knowing many things, but knowing how to find out what one wants to know. There are persons who have the commendable habit of writing to a newspaper when they want to find out any thing. Then the editor picks a book of reference from the shelf and answers the question, and it is as likely as not that the questioner had the same book on his own shelf, only he was not educated to the point of knowing that that was the book to look in.—New York Tribune.

Brilliant Glass Bedstead.

It is said that a bedstead of unique and remarkably brilliant design is being made for one of Queen Victoria's princely Indian subjects. The head and foot rails and the pillars of the bedstead are entirely of diamond cut glass, while the crimson velvet hangings are ornamented with crescents and stars of cut glass and bordered with a fringe of the same material.

IN GAY NEW YORK.

Scenes and Incidents of Everyday Life in the Paris of America.

THE ERIN TINTED SHIRTWAIST.

You see her on the corner and you see her in the crowd. You see her on the avenue, you see her in the park. You see her at the opera and you see her at the theatre. You see her in the city and you see her in the country. You see her in the city and you see her in the country. You see her in the city and you see her in the country.

At dinner and opera you count her by the score. At the theatre and at the opera you count her by the score. At the theatre and at the opera you count her by the score. At the theatre and at the opera you count her by the score.

Across the breakfast table in her sunny room at the Fifth Avenue hotel recently Mrs. Carter linked Lillian Russell and Elsie De Wolfe in the sweetest phrases. They were speaking of Miss Russell's beautiful voice, which grows richer and sweeter every year, and Mrs. Carter was telling how superior the Irish woman sang some of the songs of the great Irish dramatist. "After years of years," she declared, "there was power and tenderness; there was pathos and sweetness in it; there was the ecstasy of hope and the haunting sadness of memory. It thrilled you, and it set you dreaming. It held the child, could purify an Arctic dawn and the rich greenness of a tropical night; it was wiser; it was flatter; it was well; it was simply Elsie. De Wolfe's beautiful eyes set to music."

Two immaculate Chinamen walked down Broadway recently, started at an amusement by every feminine shopper and by many men. They wore gay silks and elaborate padded jackets. But the clothes did not excite all the attention. Each Celestial wore around his neck a fur collar, with a pink head and grinning teeth at the end. Plainly unaware of the sensation they created, the Chinamen strolled through the crowd, while every woman who passed them was consumed with envy. Fairer heads were never seen on the promenade.

An announcement of interest to the many New Yorkers who are familiar with English society has been recently made in London. This announcement is the effect that the celebrated Mrs. George Keppel is coming to America to see Mr. Keppel, who has an appointment on this side of the Atlantic. It is further said that Mrs. Keppel will be here about two months. There is no woman in England more talked about at present than Mrs. Keppel. She has held her place in a certain important circle larger than any of those called her predecessors. Although not beautiful, she is a remarkably attractive woman, and is noted for her vivacity, unflinching good humor and her rare taste in gowns. She will doubtless be widely entertained during her stay here, as she will probably bring letters from persons of position and influence in England.

The old jest about the different reasons that take men and women to church, "Some go there to close their eyes and others go to eye their clothes," is changed into something new by a witty epigram which had sat under his prosy rector's ministrations, thus:

I never see my rector's eyes; He adds the light of day; For, when he prays, he shuts his own, And when he preaches mine.

John Drew's engagement in "Richard Carvel" will continue at the Empire theatre until Saturday, December 29. Then the Empire Theatre company will return for the regular winter season, beginning on December 31. The first play in which the company will appear will be Henry Arthur Jones' "Mrs. Danvers." In the new piece William Faversham will have the part of Sir Daniel Cartwright, which Charles Wyndham is playing in London; Miss Jessie Millward will appear as Lady Eustace, the part now played by Miss Mary Moore; and Miss Margaret Anglin will have the part of Mrs. Dane. The Empire Theatre company this season will also include Miss Elsie De Wolfe, Miss Sara Perry, Miss Jessie Busley, Mrs. G. H. Gilbert, Miss May Robson, Miss Margaret Daly, Guy Standing, Edwin Stevens, Joseph Wheeler, Jr., Sidney Herbert, Oswald Yorke, George W. Howard, E. Y. Backus and others.

The first passenger to descend the gangplank of the steamer Majestic from Liverpool was Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt. She was followed by her daughter, Miss Gladys M. Vanderbilt. They were met by Mrs. Vanderbilt's sons, Alfred Wynne and Rufus Vanderbilt. The widow and her three children entered a carriage and were driven to her Fifth Avenue mansion.

Almide Ashley, who has won the hearts of daily audiences this season in the opera "San Toy," has caused a stir among wealthy property-owners in Great Neck, L. I., because she is seeking to secure a home in their community. A committee of residents took action to frustrate her plans.

It was reported that when she presented the stand they took against an actress securing a residence in Great Neck she burst into tears, and exclaimed: "Why, I'm going to retire from the stage next year. I'm going to marry William Astor Chandler."

Mr. Chandler is congressman from the Fourteenth New York district. He organized a battalion for the Spanish American war, is a Harvard graduate, society man, and a millionaire in his own right.

Miss Ashley laughingly denied last night her reported engagement to Mr. Chandler.

A new high record for seats on the Stock exchange was made when that of S. C. Gifford was sold for $40,500. Albert J. Elias, former president of the Third Avenue railroad, recently purchased a membership for $40,000.

The engagement is announced of James Gerard, elder son of the late noted lawyer and author, James W. Gerard, and whose mother was Miss Angell, and Miss Mary Daly, younger daughter of the late Marcus Daly. The engagement of Miss Margaret Daly and H. Carroll Brown of Baltimore was only recently announced. The wedding of Mr. Brown and Miss Margaret Daly was to have been celebrated early next month, but in consequence of Mr. Daly's death may now be postponed. It is reported that Mr. Daly had left his enormous fortune to his wife, so that the daughters, if this story be true, will not inherit directly from their father's estate. Mr. Gerard is a well-known young lawyer of this city and is also a prominent figure in fashionable society. The news of his engagement to the daughter of the millionaire Baltimore Western copper king the day following the latter's death comes as a great surprise to his friends, the legal and social world of New York.

Mrs. John Jacob Astor, Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, Mrs. Ogden Gould and Mrs. Charles A. Post will receive at the first assembly ball on December 13 at the Waldorf-Astoria.

CHINESE HOUSES.

Some of the Peculiarities of the Imperial Capital.

In the four cities which make up the capital, and particularly in the Imperial city, live most of the leading and expert class; and, therefore, the houses are of a more important and solid appearance than is the rule elsewhere. High brick walls, with a single stone entrance, surround a multitude of courts, flanked by the roofed dwelling rooms. It is a curious and universal custom among the Chinese to put up immediately facing the outer door a stone or brick screen, bearing tablets or painted scrolls, inscribed with the names of ancestors or classical texts. The object, according to time-honored superstition, is to ward off evil spirits, for the door on entering knocks his head against the obstacle, and, being devoid of all sense but an elementary hatred of mankind, is repelled and goes away sorrowful. Why the aristocratic denon should have the cleverness to turn in at the gate yet not submit to wheel round the screen is difficult for the initiated to understand.

There is no attempt at ostentation, or even of decent comfort, about these dwelling places. Within they are more ramshackle bungalows, with stone-flagged floors and paper windows, fantastically cut up by wooden partitions, and papered without taste or cleanliness. The furniture is polished wood made in the stiff square style that is not unfamiliar to our eyes. There are few, and of the commonest foreign make, while the bronze vessels to be seen are all modern and coarse in workmanship. London Telegraph.

NEARLY A BREAKDOWN.

Mrs. Olberg, a Prominent Minnesota Lady, Tells a Remarkable Story.

Albert Lea, Minn., Nov. 19, 1900. (Special.)—There are few men and women in this State, or indeed in the whole Northwest, who have not heard, or do not know personally, Mrs. Henriette C. Olberg of this city. Mrs. Olberg was Judge of Linen and Linen Fabrics at the World's Fair, at Chicago, and Superintendent of Flax Exhibit at the International Exposition at Omaha, Neb., in 1898. Mrs. Olberg is Secretary of the National Flax, Hemp and Ramie Association, and Assistant Editor of the "Distaff."

Her official duties are naturally very onerous, and involve a great deal of traveling and living away from home. She says:

"During the World's Fair in Chicago, my official duties so taxed my strength that I thought I would have to give them up. Through the continual change of food and irregular meal hours, and a poor quality of water, I lost my appetite, and became wakeful and nervous in the extreme. My kidneys refused to perform their usual duties. One of my assistants advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, and sent for a box. I am pleased to say that I derived immediate and permanent benefit. I used three boxes, and feel ten years younger."

"I have great confidence in the efficacy of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and am always glad to speak a good word in their favor."

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are weak women's best friend."

Religion of Laziness in Kiel. Kiel papers give particulars of an extraordinary religious community in that city, whose chief tenet is idleness. They are known as the Molevanti, from the name of their founder, Corrado Molevanti, who was released from a lunatic asylum in 1872 and straightway began to propagate his strange sect. Beginning upon the principle of the fables which "toil not, neither do ye spin," the Molevanti reject all work except that of the household, wear coarse, somber garments, and restrict themselves to a diet of bread and cheap fruits.—London Express.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. How shall a mother who is weak and sick with some female trouble bear healthy children?

How anxious women ought to be to give their children the blessing of a good constitution!

Many women long for a child to bless their home, but because of some debility or displacement of the female organs, they are barren.

Preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound more successfully than by any other medicine, because it gives tone and strength to the parts, curing all displacements and inflammation.

Actual sterility in women is very rare. If any woman thinks she is sterile, let her write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., whose advice is given free to all expectant or would-be mothers.

Mrs. A. D. Jarrot, Belmont, Ohio, writes:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I must write and tell you what your Vegetable Compound has done for me. Before taking your medicine I was unable to carry babe to maturity, having lost two—one at six months and one at seven. The doctor said next time I would die, but thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I did not die, but am the proud mother of a six months old girl baby. She weighs nineteen pounds and has never been a sick day in her life. She is the delight of our home."

Mrs. Whitney's Gratitude.

From the time I was sixteen years old till I was twenty-three I was troubled with weakness of the kidneys and terrible pains when my monthly periods came on. I made up my mind to try your Vegetable Compound, and was soon relieved. The doctor said I never would be able to go my full time and have a living child, as I was constitutionally weak. I had lost a baby at seven months and half. The next time I continued to take your Compound, and I said then, if I went my full time and my baby lived to be three months old, I should send a letter to you. My baby is now seven months old, and is as healthy and hearty as any one could wish. I cannot express my gratitude to you. I was so bad that I did not dare to go away from home to stay any length of time. Praise God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and may others who are suffering do as I did and find relief. Wishing you success in the future as in the past, and many many homes be brightened as mine has been."—Mrs. L. Z. WHITNEY, 4 Flint St., Somerville, Mass.

'Twixt Life and Death

FRANK BARRETT

One afternoon she came into the room where Nessa was sitting alone, in a particularly ill-humor. Nessa could get no more than a nod or a shake of the head in reply to her observations; yet it was obvious by her manner that she had brought her knitting with the set purpose of staying there.

It had occurred to Nessa on this very afternoon that she had never told her friends who she really was, and how she had come to be an equestrienne. It struck her now that they must attribute her reticence to a want of confidence in them, or to her having done something which she was ashamed to reveal. The possibility of being so misunderstood made her cheeks burn, and she resolved that, on the very first occasion, she would tell the whole truth about herself. She expected that Grace would be dreadfully shocked to hear that she had run away from school, and got into trouble with the police at St. John's Wood, and been hunted out of Brighton; but she felt sure that Dr. Meredith—that dear, generous friend—would make allowance for her ignorance and simplicity, and see that she was not really guilty of dishonesty. And in her heart of hearts she was elated with the hope that he would like her better for knowing that she was well born, and the victim of cruel persecution, and heiress to a large fortune.

This pleasant reflection was brightening her cheeks when Mrs. Blount broke silence.

"I've sent 'em out for a drive," she said.

Nessa looked up from the page on which her eyes had been resting while her thoughts wandered elsewhere, and said she was glad; it was such a lovely afternoon for a drive.

"Yes; but he'd have been sitting in this room as it is raining cats and dogs if I hadn't spoken out," said the old lady, in a tone of vexation. "It's the first time I've ever had to tell him what he ought to do. He'd have found it out for himself a month ago."

Nessa, wondering, looked with wide, inquiring eyes at her companion.

"Oh, I suppose you have not noticed any more than he has."

"Noticed what?" inquired Nessa.

"That my dear Grace is growing quieter and quieter, more thoughtful, more gentle even than she ever was. You haven't noticed that she doesn't watch by the window for her sweetheart to come, that she slips away from the room when he is here, that she is growing old-maidish in her ways. I have. And it made my heart ache when I see 'em through the blinds as they started off in the pony coupe, for they didn't look smiling into each other's face; but he looked up at this window, and she looked straight before her as if she had no lover in the world."

"Oh, do they not love each other now?" Nessa asked, with a trembling voice.

"What is the matter?"

"What is the matter?" echoed the old nurse, laying down her knitting. "Well, my dear, if you don't know—and I will say this, I believe you are innocent—if you don't know, it's my duty to tell you before things get past mending. You're taking Sweeney's heart away from my poor Grace! He's fallen in love with you—that's what's the matter!"

This news so shocked Nessa that even before Grace returned from her ride with Sweeney she persuaded Mrs. Blount to take her with her to Brighton, if Dr. Meredith deemed her well enough to go, and, in fact, she received this permission a few days later.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Several weeks later Nessa received a letter. It gave her quite a flutter of excitement, so monotonous and dull was her eventless life at this time; but her heart beat quicker still when she perceived by the postmark that it must be from Dr. Meredith. She opened it with a feeling of hope which it would have been impossible for her to explain, having nothing to hope for. Sweeney inclosed a letter with a couple of lines:

"SWEYEN MEREDITH."

The communication was studiously brief. He could scarcely have written less; yet Nessa was not disappointed, and in the pleasure of reading it over and over again forgot the inclosure. It was clear she must acknowledge the letter, and feeling that she could think of nothing else until she had written she sat down to the task at once. She wrote the first words that came from her heart:

"Dear Mr. Meredith: I thank you for the letter. I think I can never be so ungrateful as to forget your friendship and kindness."

"V. D."

She could not say less than this, and she dared not say more, and so, with a sigh of regret, she put up the sheet of paper in an envelope and addressed it to the doctor. After that she went out and posted her letter with as much care as if the happiness of her life depended on it. This mighty business, with the flood of conjectures and bitter-sweet recollection it brought upon her, so engrossed her thought that only when she got home to Myrtle Cottage and set herself resolutely to think of something else she remembered the inclosed letter.

It was addressed, "Miss Viola Duncanson, Arcadia, West Kensington," read, "Miss Fergus, Esq., International, Paris," addressed again, "Care of Dr. Meredith, Grafton Road, Hammersmith, London," and finally re-addressed, "Lesson Park, Barmston, Yorkshire."

Opening the letter, Nessa, with awakening curiosity, turned to the signature, and found with surprise that the writer was Maud Redmond. It was dated 23 Murdock Square, Euston Road, Tuesday, and ran on thus:

"My Darling Nessa: I do not know

whether you are living or dead. For the last week I have been in London, seeking you everywhere in a state of mind perfectly indescribable. I have suffered tortures since that dreadful night. I must have been mad to run away as I did; but what wonder when Fergus told me I had killed you? I own that the fear of being publicly accused of murdering my darling friend terrified me, and I ran away to save myself. Whatever faults I may have, no one can say I am a fool, and only an idiot could have attempted to injure you in my position—I had everything to lose, and nothing to gain by it. For did you not share all you had with me, and did I not give you my home, position and everything else for your sake? But why should I seek to clear myself from such a monstrous charge when I am sure that you would be the last to harbor an unjust thought or ungenerous reflection? No, darling, whether you live or whether you are in that state where all secrets are known, it is all the same; you know that I am innocent—you know that I am to be pitied.

"I shall send this letter to Arcadia in the last hope that it may be forwarded to you if you live. And, oh! for pity's sake, write to me if you receive it and put an end to my agony. Let me come and look at your sweet face once more—let me share your life—help you in some way to show how truly I love you, and would repair the chances I have lost. It is the last kindness I ask of you, my darling. Your most unhappy

"MAUD REDMOND."

Mrs. Redmond had not yet risen from her bed in the second floor back of 22 Murdock square—it was not yet midday—when her landlady, entering the room without ceremony, joggled her shoulder and said, hurriedly:

"Here—get up! The young lady's come! Drove up in a hansom!"

"Is she alone?" asked Mrs. Redmond, springing out of bed with blinking eyes.

"Yes, you ain't goin' to have her up here, are you?"

The place was sufficiently wretched and squalid to excite compassion, but the general effect was not picturesque—not the picture of distress which an experienced stage manager would set before his audience, and Mrs. Redmond knew her business and the character of the girl she had to play to as well as anyone. The crust of a pork pie, the remains of last night's supper, stood on the dressing table with a bottle of hair-wash, a saucer of violet powder, and a paper of rouge. On the table—drawn up for convenience to the side of the bed—was a lamp without a shade, a tray with the remains of the morning's breakfast, a pile of hairpins and some odds and ends of linen.

"I've showed her into the front sitting room," said the landlady, "but she ain't sent away—the eah, so you'd better look sharp, my dear. What are you looking for now?"

"My shoes. Look under those things on the chair. That's just the way when you want a thing—"

"You are such an untidy lady. Here, take mine, my dear; they'll do to slip down in."

"Dip the corner of the towel in the water jug. Where's that braided jacket? Never mind; give me the towel. Now look about for that waterproof."

"Here it is, my dear—all creased up, anyhow. You ain't going to put any stuff on your face, are you?"

"Not likely," replied Mrs. Redmond, as she stood before the glass wiping her face with the towel.

"Oh, that's all right. You shall have it right enough. I tell you I can twist her round my finger, and you see, she's come just as I said she would, and the hansom shows she has got the money. How do I look?" She turned, assuming a woe-begone expression.

"You're as good as a play," chuckled the landlady, with her hand to her mouth. "You'll do."

Entering the sitting room where Nessa was sitting by the window, Mrs. Redmond started as if she had seen a ghost, and then tottering forward a few steps she fell on her knees, and stretched out her hands with an imploring cry. Nessa went quickly to her side and put her arms round the woman's neck.

"Nessa, my darling Nessa," gasped Mrs. Redmond, taking the girl's hand and smothering it with kisses. "Oh, tell me that you forgive me. No—I will not rise till I know I am forgiven."

"There is nothing to forgive. You did not mean to hurt me. Oh, I am sure of that as you yourself must be."

"Thank heaven for this!" murmured Mrs. Redmond, devoutly, bending her head and clasping her hands. "But I forgot you when I should have stood by you—think of that."

"I would rather think of anything else—of how, for instance, you stood by me when I was in greater need. There, do get up. It distresses me a great deal more to see you like this than to think of your running away."

Mrs. Redmond allowed herself to be comforted, and gradually came round to a state of mind less embarrassing in its effect upon Nessa.

"You have given me strength," she said, faintly; "in a little while I shall be able to look for work." The boldness of her voice frightened Nessa.

"You were very poor when you wrote to me. Have you had anything to eat today?" she asked. Mrs. Redmond shook her head, with a plaintive smile.

"But I had some tea and bread last night," she murmured gratefully.

"I feared it was so," said Nessa, "and I have kept the hansom waiting. We will go out and get some dinner."

"I can't, my darling. I have nothing but the things I stand in. The clothes I brought from Brussels have been taken by the woman of this house for my rent, and I have nothing to redeem them."

"I have," said Nessa, eagerly putting her hand in her pocket. "I am quite rich

—see. Mr. Fergus paid me two hundred pounds and I have brought half of it for you."

CHAPTER XXIV.

Since her first call on Mrs. Redmond Nessa made several others, sometimes in the afternoon, but more frequently in the evenings, and, though she seemed feverishly excited when she returned to her home, she would vouchsafe no explanation to Mrs. Blount.

One afternoon, while she was thus absent, Grace called to see her, and Mrs. Blount, uneasy at Miss Duncanson's behavior, told Grace about it. The latter, scenting some grave and unknown peril to Nessa, left Mrs. Blount, almost abruptly, and from the nearest postoffice dispatched the following telegram to Sweeney: "Come at once. You are needed."

Nessa was dressing to go out the next morning, when the maid knocked at her door and said:

"Please, miss, will you come into the sitting room, Missis says, before you go out."

"Yes, I will come," Nessa answered, "almost directly."

Mrs. Blount had told her briefly, when she came in, that Grace had called in the afternoon to see her, and now she expected to be scolded for her irregularities.

She went downstairs painfully, conscious of her faults, and hoping that Mrs. Blount would forgive her. The sitting room door was partly open; she entered, closed the door, and, turning to the table where Mrs. Blount invariably stationed herself on various occasions, she started with an exclamation of astonishment. Sweeney stood before her!

For a couple of moments they stood silent, and still facing each other, and marking the change a few weeks had produced. But her wonder was greater than this, for Grace had prepared him for what he saw, while she was ignorant of the struggle which had exhausted him. The English gayety was gone from his face, the carelessness of his manner; he looked quite old and severe, despite the softness in his deep eyes.

"You have come to scold me," she said, in a tone of contrition.

"Yes—partly," he answered, but there was no anger in his voice, and, taking both her hands in his, he held them as if he meant to keep them forever, looking into her eyes the while with such tender earnestness and deep solicitude that her heart fluttered with a wild, uncontrollable joy.

"Don't you think I ought to scold you?" he asked, after a moment's pause, still holding her hands in his.

"I have done wrong," she said, thinking of the pain she had given Mrs. Blount; "she has been very kind to me, and I have tried her patience shamefully, and, instead of asking her to pardon me, I have been silent and morose, not treating her as a friend at all."

"Is she the only one you have failed to treat as a friend? Have you kept your promise to me? Why didn't you write to me and say 'I want your advice'?"

"But I am quite well now. There is nothing the matter with my health."

"Ah, you will think of me only as your doctor. Well, as your doctor, let me assure myself that I can do nothing for you. Sit down—no, not there, with your back to the light; here, where I may see your face."

(He seated her, and, still holding her hands, stood before her, looking down.)

"Your eyes are sunk, your cheek is thin; there are signs of suffering, pain, fatigue about your mouth," he said.

"It is fatigue. I went to the theater last night with a lady friend. It was very late when I came home."

"Yes. It was nearly one when you put out your light."

"You have heard all about me."

"No, not all. I know that you have been seeking happiness and found but a very poor substitute for it. I know that, poor as the substitute is, it makes you for a time forget some great trouble; but I can only guess what that trouble is, and I must make sure of it before I dare to prescribe a remedy."

She trembled under his fixed gaze.

VISIONS SEEN IN SLEEP.

A dream about marriage denotes poverty and other misfortunes.

A dream of a lion means you will shortly get a profitable office.

A dream that you are bleeding indicates the loss of property or reputation.

To dream of being dressed in white means success in your next undertaking.

To dream of picture cards indicates that you will be married to a wealthy person.

To dream of finding a pocketbook or purse betokens unexpected success of some kind.

If you dream of a goose you may expect soon to see a friend who has been long absent.

A dream of being at a fair means you will soon be swindled by a pretended friend.

To dream of a monkey signifies that you will be deceived by the object of your affections.

To dream about a sheet of white paper means that you will marry a person you do not love.

Dreaming of an adversary signifies that you are to overcome obstacles which are in your way.

To dream of a swallow signifies that you will soon make the acquaintance of a strange young lady.

To dream that a policeman has you in charge is a sign that you will escape from some impending evil.

To dream that you are hungry means that you will rise to eminence and wealth by your own exertions.

To dream that you are kissing some body means that an unknown friend will shortly confer upon you a great benefit.

A dream of ringing bells means either a speedy marriage among your acquaintances or some good news to yourself.

The Imperial family of Russia possesses the most valuable collection of precious stones of any reigning house in the world.

A FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

Miss Hehardt of Ahnapee Burned to Death at Sturgeon Bay.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES

Guests Carried Out of Burning Building by Firemen—Lost All Their Belongings.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Nov. 19. [Special.] Fire early this morning destroyed the Hotel French, one life being lost in the conflagration. At about 2 o'clock fire was discovered in the kitchen of the hotel by Mrs. French, wife of the proprietor. She immediately turned in an alarm and hurriedly went from room to room awakening the sleeping guests. Even though she had not taken time to dress, her warning was none too soon, for the fire spread with great rapidity. The building was of brick veneered, to which was being added an addition to increase the capacity.

The hotel was crowded and most of the guests were obliged to make their escape in their nightgowns and some were taken from the second-story windows by the firemen.

In the new part of the building Miss Hehardt had a room over the culinary department, where the fire originated. She was awakened by a servant and she dressed herself. She could have escaped, but thinking she could save her belongings returned to her room, where she was evidently overcome by smoke and afterwards cremated.

It was supposed that Miss Hehardt had escaped, no effort was made to rescue her until the discovery was made that she was missing, but it was then too late. The body was recovered from the ruins this morning.

The dead woman was a guest and had come here for medical treatment from Ahnapee only a few days ago. She was about 30 years old.

The loss on the hotel, which is total, will aggregate about $8000, with only insurance for half that amount.

Manitowoc Will Soon Have a $700,000 Elevator Northern Grain Company's Plans.

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 19. [Special.] A promise, which was made by the Northern Grain company to the city council, when the question was up as to what the company could be taxed, if the assessed valuation was reduced, if the company would build a large elevator in and about the city, has been realized.

The plans are now drawn and submitted to the city. The elevator will cost $700,000 and have a capacity of 1,500,000 bushels. It will have the latest machinery. It has not yet been selected. It will probably be on the North-western Western's property on the south lake front. At the time when the board of review was in session the company asked for a reduction of $50,000 in its valuation. The board was in doubt and the company sent a telegram to Mayor Blair stating that they had in contemplation the building of an elevator in either Omaha or this city. If the assessment was lowered Manitowoc would get the elevator. The assessment was lowered and the company has kept its promise.

KILLED BY A GIRL.

Frank Goerke Is Accidentally Shot on the Scheets Farm Near Waukesha.

Waukesha, Wis., Nov. 19. [Special.] The 16-year-old daughter of John D. Scheets, who lives in the town of New Berlin, shot and killed Frank Goerke, 18 years old, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Goerke and the two Scheets girls had been practicing target shooting. The target was placed against an old building which was back of the house. After they had been practicing a while the girl went into the house and in the meantime Goerke went into the building against which the target was placed. The girl, when she came back, did not know this, and fired the rifle at the target. The bullet passed through the boards and lodged in the heart of Goerke, killing him instantly.

Sheriff King was notified of the affair and Justice of the Peace W. A. Poree was summoned. He called a jury, composed of H. M. Brigham, C. J. Patterson, George Foran, Dr. D. Roberts, A. J. Baldwin and W. E. Stephens, who visited the place of the accident and adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Frank Goerke, who formerly was employed by George Luber, had been working for the past two years at Mr. Scheets', and was greatly attached to the family. The girl who did the shooting is nearly crazed by the affair. The remains were brought to this city. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

HUNTER KILLS HIMSELF.

Ice on River Breaks Under Man's Weight and Gun Discharges as He Falls.

Merrill, Wis., Nov. 19. [Special.] Fred Sell was found dead yesterday on the ice of Copper river, five miles north of here, by several hunters, who spent the day near the place. Attracted by prolonged howls of a dog they discovered the remains. He had evidently been crossing the river when the ice broke through and in going down the hanging of his gun caught on the edge of the ice. The bullet struck him under the chin, shattered his brain and passed out by the ear.

NAVIGATION ON ST. CROIX.

Stillwater Boom and Dam Company Is Said to Interfere.

Arcadia, Wis., Nov. 19. [Special.] Ken of Stillwater is here getting testimony regarding the navigation hindrance of the St. Croix river and also regarding the matter in which the Stillwater Boom and Dam company has acted toward navigation on the stream. The captain has endeavored to run steamers on the river stream for thirty years, but has encountered a great obstacle in the Boom Dam company, which has on many occasions cut off the water at its dam and so the captain has been forced to become stranded on land bars.

MISTAKEN FOR A BEER.

Dudley Man Shot Down by a Hunter Not Fatally Wounded.

Merrill, Wis., Nov. 19. [Special.] Len Hinch of Dudley, a summer resort north of here, was shot in the arm Sunday by Edward Ford, who took the man for a deer. The bullet pierced his arm, but passed out without fatally injuring him.

AGENT AND MONEY CANNOT BE FOUND.

Z. E. Borst of Combined Locks Disappears with Funds of Northwestern Railway.

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Z. E. Borst, station agent for the Chicago & North-Western road at Combined Locks, and an amount of money variously estimated at from $100 to $500, are missing from their accustomed place in the depot and officers about the country are notified to be on the watch for him. It is not possible to tell how much money was taken, as it is believed he has been taking money for some time. The traveling auditor is at present checking up the accounts. The shortage was discovered by a partial examination made by H. C. Wink, the traveling auditor who discovered that something was wrong and asked Borst some questions. The agent acknowledged that he was $100 short but promised to make it good. With this object in view he was allowed to go home and was seen to enter his house. Since that time, two days ago, nothing has been seen of him. The police are of the opinion that Borst is hiding in Appleton.

SAYS ENGAGEMENT WAS BROKEN OFF

Manitowoc Married Man Flies His Answer in Breach of Promise Case.

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Walter M. Joyce, the young attorney of this city who has been sued for $5000 damages by Miss Mary Berg of Kewauqua for breach of promise to marry, has filed an answer in which he admits having been engaged to Miss Berg, but denies that the time for the marriage was fixed. The answer alleges that during the winter of 1908-9, the plaintiff at St. Vincent's hospital, in the city of Green Bay, underwent a surgical operation, in consequence of which the plaintiff was physically incapable of fulfilling the fulfillment of the marriage agreement, and that on August 14, 1909, in the town of Rockland, Brown county, shortly after the return of the defendant from college, it was then and there mutually agreed and understood between defendant and plaintiff that the agreement to marry was annulled and declared void by mutual withdrawal of the respective promises, and that the defendant relied upon the agreement so made and married another. The defendant also alleges that the plaintiff never asked him to marry her since the meeting in Rockland above referred to.

BISHOP ON RITUALISM.

Grafton Says that Oshkosh Minister Has Perfect Right to His Views on Subject.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Bishop Grafton had no opinion to express on Rev. Mr. Greenwood's report of criticism in Trinity church, Oshkosh, Sunday, of the ceremonies attending the consecration of Bishop Weller at St. Paul's cathedral in this city November 8. After reading the report of the sermon in the Evening Wisconsin last evening, the bishop's face, which is never more striking than when wreathed in smiles, fairly beamed, as he good-naturedly and heartily said: "Why, what is America if it isn't a free country? We all have a right to our own opinions. We will always have the low churchmen and the high churchmen, and we can do each other good. We can learn from each other. It is well that it is so. No, I would not take it upon myself to criticize. Father preached for his stand. As a diocese, the Fond du Lac diocese is almost unit—and we have the greatest harmony. Bishop Grafton was then asked if the church allowed the use of vestments and if they were not abolished at the time of the reformation. In answer he said:

"The reformation was a necessity and to its great principles of its appeal to antiquity all the sons of the church are loyal. It is a mistake to suppose that the reformation was a movement confined to a few years, or to the reign of King Henry VIII. It was a movement that commenced in 1530 and lasted to the return of the Stuarts in 1602. It was a double movement. First, against the extravagant claims of the papacy, resulting in an open Bible and services in the vernacular, changing the discipline of the church, which allowed the marriage of the clergy and giving back the cup of the holy communion to the laity, and second, against the Puritans, who, when in power, abolished the prayerbook, episcopacy and all liturgical forms and all that was beautiful in worship. The final outcome was the book of prayer, as we substantially have it, put forth in the year 1632.

The church never did away with the ancient vestments. A rubric to be found in the English book of common prayer authorized their use. In a photograph taken of the ministers of the bishops and priests officiating at the Queen's jubilee we have all the bishops in copes and all the canons of Westminster abbey also. Among the bishops was the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Thompson, the low church Archbishop of York, Dr. Temple, then the bishop of London and now archbishop of Canterbury.

"It may calm the agitated feelings of some of our broad church brethren to know that among the canons found in their motherland church leader, Canon Farrar, not long ago an illustrated London paper gave a portrait of the bishop of London wearing the same."

"Of course these vestments symbolize the teaching that is embodied all through the prayer book from beginning to end of sacerdotalism that is expressed in the words, 'priest, altar and sacrifice.' The American book of common prayer contains these words and all churchmen loyal to the prayer book accept them."

No one is disturbed by the worn out cry of Ritualism. It is only used like some political cry, as a shield behind which to shelter one's self, or to playing to the galleries to increase one's popularity."

TO HAVE FINE LABORATORIES.

Physics Department at University of Wisconsin Is Being Improved.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Wisconsin university will soon have one of the best physics laboratories in the country. The old mechanical engineering drafting department is being renovated and will be fitted throughout with large size tables for experimental and drawing purposes. Considerable new apparatus will be added.

ARRESTED AT PRISON GATE.

Two Men Wanted at Hurley Charged with Forgery.

Wausau, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Sheriff Bodine of Hurley was in the city yesterday and arrested Henry S. Mori and Lawrence Cunningham as they left the city after serving short sentences. They are wanted in answer to a charge of forgery and burglary.

TEACHERS TO MEET AT DULUTH.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Teachers are preparing to participate in the meeting of the Lake Superior Teachers' association at Duluth November 30 and December 1.

BELOIT PASTOR DENIES CHARGES.

Returns from Europe and Is Thundrstruck at Finding He Has Been Removed.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Rev. R. A. W. Lincoln, pastor of the First German Lutheran church of this city, who went to Germany on vacation, has returned. Mr. Lincoln knew nothing of the charges against him until he reached Beloit, and was thundrstruck. He also learned that the church had officially severed its relation with him and officially given him a chance to defend himself. He says that he has been guilty of no act unbecoming a pastor. Some think his congregation will renege him, although they have elected his successor.

TRIES TO KILL HER NEW BORN BABY.

Young Elephant at Baraboo to be Raised on Cow's Milk Event in Circus Circles.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] Alice, the mother of the baby elephant born at the winter quarters of Ringling's circus yesterday, does not like her offspring and tried to kill it. The keepers saved the young animal and took it away from its infuriated mother. A fresh milk cow was secured at once, and, though somewhat frightened, became wet nurse after a few hours. The baby weighs 40 pounds and is strong and healthy and bids fair to thrive.

This is the only elephant born in America. Circusmen and the keepers of animals in zoological gardens have never heretofore been fortunate enough to secure the big animals except by importing them from Asia and Africa. It has always been asserted that elephants do not breed even in their native climate when domesticated. The mother of the new baby is Alice. She has been a member of the herd for six years. Before that she had traveled a number of years with a wagon show. Alice is about 35 years old. The father is Baby. He is more than 50 years old, and said to be the largest elephant now in captivity.

SUICIDE OF AGED MAN.

Weyauwega, Wis., Nov. 20. [Special.] George Washington Taggart, Sr., committed suicide by hanging himself in the barn with a halter. Mr. Taggart was in his eighty-seventh year and had become quite deaf, and was almost blind. His wife died last year, aged 81 years. Since then Mr. Taggart had failed rapidly.

Mr. Taggart was born in Cortland county, N. Y., February 22, 1812. In 1836 he came West and settled in Chicago, working as a carpenter at that place and at Racine. He settled upon a farm in Rochester, Racine county, in 1838, and soon after became the second postmaster of the village. He taught the first school in western

FINISHED THEIR SESSION.

County Board Adjourns after Six Days' Work.

The county board adjourned on Wednesday after having put in six days' work at routine business. The date of the next meeting will be the second Tuesday in February when the report of the finance committee will be considered.

One of the most important matters taken up by the board was the equalization matter. The valuation in most instances was greatly changed as will be seen by the following:

	1899	1900
Total county	$1,945,000	$6,244,900
Marshfield City	280,000	1,150,000
Marshfield Town	44,000	151,500
Grand Rapids City	350,000	995,000
Auburndale Vill.	15,000	42,500
Auburndale Town	64,000	202,900
Lincoln	83,000	250,300
Rock	72,000	228,300
Richfield	59,000	181,500

Many were inclined to kick at the above figures, but it will not make taxes any higher as a general thing.

The matter of dividing the towns of Wood and Vesper as mentioned last week was discussed but no action was taken on the matter.

PUSHING THE WORK.

Northwestern Company have Nearly Finished Survey to Marshfield.

The Northwestern has the survey between this city and Marshfield nearly completed. The survey is carried along the east side of the M. & S. E. road until the brick yard is reached where the new route crosses the old line and continues so until Marshfield is reached.

Mr. Cook, the company's representative here, has been buying land along the right of way as fast as the titles could be looked up and papers made out. Among the tracts purchased during the past week is that belonging to the McMillan Bros., for which the company paid $5,000, the present owners to retain the buildings, other pieces of property purchased by the company are D. D. Conway's back lot, lots owned by Chas. Briere, Wm. Scott, Mrs. Ernestine Fontaine, F. J. Wood and the Lyon estate.

Forestry Work.

The field work of the Division of Forestry of the department of agriculture, which has been carried on in many parts of the country by parties of different sizes since last May, has now been largely completed for 1900. This summer's work was carried on in New York, Tennessee, Missouri, Colorado, South Dakota, Arkansas, Arizona, Washington, Oregon, California, a number of tree planting states of the middle west, and, in a small way, in other states besides. Much new and valuable information has been collected, and a very large number of surveys has been made, of the results of which it will soon be possible to make practical use.

The work which has thus been going on in the field consisted of making forest surveys and of gathering measurements and information about growth, stand, reproduction, etc. Much of it, as that in the Black Hills Forest Reserve, in the Adirondacks, and on the tract of the Sawyer & Austin Lumber company in Arkansas, is preparatory to the preparation of what are called "working plans," or plans for the management and utilization of given tracts of timber. These are based not on any general rules, but on a thorough knowledge of the peculiarities of the forest on each tract, of the market and transportation facilities of the regions in which they are situated, and of the financial necessities of each case. The rest of the work of the field parties has been more of the character of investigations as, for instance, the examination of the influence of forest cover on water-flow which was made on the watershed of the Arrowhead river in southern California, the studies of the habits of growth and reproduction of the two most important lumber trees of the Pacific coast—the Red Fir and the Redwood, and the survey of the results of tree planting undertakings which have been carried on in the northern part of the Mississippi Valley.

During the coming winter the agents of the Division will spend most of their time in working up the results of the summer's surveys and in preparing reports on them, although there will doubtless be some field work as well.

Thanksgiving Day.

Next Thursday, November 29, occurs that day so dear to the memory of all American people and to many who have adopted America as a home. Dear to many American because there clusters around the memory of it many scenes and occurrences that were the dearest of a lifetime; dear to others because it seems a hallowed day, the religious observance of which is no more than a kind creator is entitled to.

There are people so low in the social scale that they sneer at the idea of giving thanks for favors received on this earth, and make light of the feeling expressed by others, but luckily these are few, and their demoralizing influence is not a very weighty matter compared with the onward course of a nation.

We sincerely hope that everyone of our readers may have something to be thankful for. The past year has been one of general prosperity and while some of us may have had experiences that were not exactly to our liking, still these were only in the natural course of events and should be treated accordingly. And if you have plenty and to spare and if your neighbor be needy, try to make the day such a one for him that he can be thankful with you.

Rapidly Recovering.

Ernest Quackenbush of City Point, who was shot while hunting deer about a week ago, has about recovered from his injuries.

Mr. Quackenbush received his injuries in a remarkable manner. He and a friend were engaged in carrying a deer out of the woods when some hunter saw the animal and shot at it with a load of buckshot. One of the shot entered Mr. Quackenbush's head, the missile striking over the left eye and going in toward the right side of the head. Dr. Pomainville was sent for and although it was impossible to locate the shot, the man is about all right and able to be about and attend to his work.

The accident occurred at Spalding, where Mr. Quackenbush was hunting with a friend. When the man shot both men dropped to the ground and prepared to give their assailant a dose of the same medicine if he did not desist, but he stopped shooting as soon as he discovered his mistake.

High School Notes.

All is quiet along the Wisconsin this week. Pupils are extremely busy committing to paper what they have acquired during the past six weeks. This week ends the first term of this school year.

The first question now required in all the examinations this time and in time to come is neatness and composition, something greatly needed in both schools.

A. W. Bryant spent a part of Thursday morning looking over the work.

An Unusual Experience.

Pat Corcoran met with an accident at Port Edwards on Sunday that he will not care to have repeated right away. He was at work repairing the dam, when he lost his footing and fell into the water. The current was swift and he was unable to do anything against it and was carried through a break in the dam. When rescued he was about gone up, not only from the effects of the water, but also had sustained numerous cuts and bruises.

Death of Mabelle Whitrock.

Mabelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Whitrock died Saturday evening of spinal meningitis, aged two years and three months. The funeral took place the following Tuesday Rev. J. L. Bittner, officiating.

Little Mabelle was the life and light of the home with her sweet ways and joyous prattle. Kind friends and neighbors sympathize deeply with the bereaved parents in their sad affliction.

ILLEGAL HUNTING.

Complaint by Many That Deer have been Slaughtered Illegally.

Complaints have been coming in since the close of the deer season to the effect that many deer have been slaughtered this fall in an illegal manner. In some instances the deer have been hunted with dogs and in others they have been killed out of season. Those who claim to know say that these are not just isolated cases, but happen every day and the general verdict is that it should be stopped.

Some say there are not enough game wardens and others say that the wardens now existing are not situated in a manner that will allow them to attend to the matter. It is certainly a remarkable state of affairs that these conditions should exist without the authorities being able to stop them, and in fact there be nothing done to abate the evil. If lovers of sport would make it a point to see that guilty parties are arrested and convicted the trouble would soon be stopped. If the hunters who take pleasure in hunting deer will not take the trouble to have the guilty ones arrested, they certainly cannot expect men, who never care for hunting to waste any time stopping the trouble.

It has been proposed by some and it is understood that an effort will be made to induce the legislature to pass a law by which a part of the license money can be retained at home and used to defray the expenses of more game wardens, and have the officers so distributed that they will be able to keep track of what is going on.

From all reports there have been more deer killed this year in the county than ever before which would indicate that they were plentiful and if the law was observed as it now reads there would be good hunting in the county for many years to come.

BIG MATCH IS ON.

Beell and Adamson Again to Meet at Marshfield.

Marshfield News: The great wrestling match between Fred Beell of this city and Ed Adamson of Indianapolis is now a go. The men will come together for the fourth time in a battle royal. About $1,000 will go to the winner as a result of the evening's work, the largest purse ever contested for in central Wisconsin.

Last week the News, on behalf of Fred Beell, sent a counter challenge to Ed Adamson, enclosing signed articles of agreement. These were returned yesterday with the addition of Adamson's signature which makes the match a certainty, a forfeit of $100 having been previously placed in the hands of Adam Paulus, stake holder.

The contest will be catch-as-catch-can style; two points down; pin falls to count; no holds barred; both men to weigh in at no more than 153 pounds on afternoon of match; best three out of five falls to win; the match to be for $700 a side; the winner to take 75 per cent, and the loser 25 per cent. of the gate receipts; Ed Adamson is guaranteed at least $75 win or lose for expenses; the referee to be chosen one day before the match; to be held in Marshfield on Saturday night, Dec. 15th, at 9 o'clock a. m.

Few believed that Adamson would have the temerity to tackle Beell with all holds open, after being thrown a few months ago with Beell's favorite hold barred. It only goes as further evidence of the Indianapolis athlete's remarkable pluck and perseverance. It is plain that Adamson's desire is to regain the losses of the two previous matches with Beell in one grand conquest, as it was he who named the size of the purse.

With two men so evenly matched as Beell and Adamson, no man can pick the winner with any degree of certainty. Faulty condition on the day scheduled or a slight accident during the contest would do the business for the unfortunate one.

The sporting fraternity of central Wisconsin may prepare to witness one of the greatest wrestling matches ever held in the state.

Irl R. Hicks 1901 Almanac.

Whatever may be said of the scientific causes upon which the Rev. Irl R. Hicks bases his yearly forecasts of weather, it is a remarkable fact that specific warnings of every great storm, flood, cold wave and drought, have been plainly printed in his now famous Almanac for many years. The latest startling proof of this fact was the destruction of Galveston, Texas, on the very day named by Prof. Hicks in his 1900 Almanac, as one of disaster by storm along the gulf coasts. The 1901 Almanac, by far the finest, most complete and beautiful yet published, is now ready. This remarkable book of near two hundred pages, splendidly illustrated with charts and half-tone engravings, goes as a premium to every subscriber who pays one dollar a year for Prof. Hicks' Journal, Word and Works. The Almanac alone is sent prepaid for only 25 cents. Order from WORD AND WORKS Publishing Company, 2201 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo.

Speaks in Highest Terms of Peruna as a Catarrh Cure.

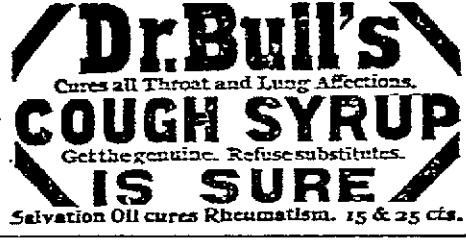

Mrs. M. A. Theatro, member Rebecca Lodge, also member of Woman's Relief Corps, writes the following letter from 1833 Jackson street, Minneapolis, Minn.:

Mrs. M. A. Theatro, Minneapolis, Minn.

Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O. Gentlemen:—As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I have been troubled with chronic catarrh for over six years. I had tried several remedies without relief. A lodge friend advised me to try Peruna, and I began to use it faithfully before each meal. Since then I have always kept it in the house. I am now in better health than I have been in over twenty years, and I feel sure my catarrh is permanently cured.

Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. As soon as Peruna removes systemic catarrh the digestion becomes good, nerves strong, and trouble vanishes. Peruna strengthens weak nerves, not by temporarily stimulating them, but by removing the cause of weak nerves—systemic catarrh. This is the only cure that lasts. Remove the cause; nature will do the rest. Peruna removes the cause. Address The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a book treating of catarrh in its different phases and stages, also a book entitled "Health and Beauty," written especially for women.

Thompson's Eye Water

FADED IN HER YOUTH

Pretty faces and graceful forms of young women! Why is it they are so soon replaced by plainness and lankness? It is because the young girl just entering into womanhood does not know how to take care of herself and has no one competent to instruct her. It is not necessary that there should be anything weakening or wearying about the obligations of a female organism. Parents of young girls should inform themselves and prevent their dear ones from making costly errors.

That young woman has a just cause of complaint, who is permitted to believe that great periodic suffering is to be expected, that severe mysterious pains and aches are part of her natural experience as a woman. These things are making constant war on her health, her disposition and her beauty. It is a wanton sacrifice, absolutely unnecessary and cruel. It is more—it is criminal.

Dr. Greene's NERVURA

for the Blood and Nerves

Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, is the right medicine for every young girl who is just entering the first stage of womanhood. It prepares the system in every way to act normally. It enriches the blood supply, and keeps the nerves calm and steady. Fortified with this great medicine, all the womanly duties may be undertaken and experienced without the slightest jeopardy to health. It preserves the gifts of nature and assists their development into glowing, healthful beauty.

Mrs. MARY FRANCES LITTLE, of 2 Hunter Alley, Rochester, N. Y., says: "I was very pale and delicate—had no color. I took Dr. Greene's Nervura blood and nerve remedy, and now I am well and strong, my face is plump, and cheeks red, and my complexion pure."

Mrs. WILLIAM BARTLETS, 239 East 87th St., New York City, says: "Dr. Greene's Nervura made a wonderful improvement in my health, and that dark, sallow look left my face. My friends hardly know me. I have gained flesh and am like a different person."

The nervousness in women which invariably comes with pain is of itself certain to stop the development of beauty in face and figure. Excited nerves make sharp lines and hasty speech. The beautiful curves which make women so attractive are not possible when the female organism is out of order, as it surely is when discomfort and pain are always or even periodically present. It is only necessary to look in the faces of young women everywhere to see that this must be so. Else why are they so pale and thin?

FIRST T-RAILS IN AMERICA.

Made in Cardiff, Wales, for the Camden & Amboy Railroad.

In recognition of Andrew Carnegie's gift of $10,000 for a new building for Stevens Institute of Technology in Hoboken, New Jersey, it has been decided to present him with a section of an original 36-pound T-rail from the Camden & Amboy railroad used in a suitable receptacle. The incident has a local interest inasmuch as the rails were rolled in the Downfalls works in 1831 and were the first T-rails designed or made, although the Vignoles rails produced in France several years later have generally been credited with being the earliest. The former were designed by Robert L. Stevens, who was sent to England to have them made, there being in America at that time no mill capable of doing the work. When he arrived in England, he called for bids on the job from various iron works, but at first none of them ventured to undertake it. After a while he persuaded Mr. (subsequently Sir) John Guest to attempt the task, not, however, before guarantees had been given against damage to the machinery in performing the mighty task of rolling a 36-pound rail. Finally the rails were satisfactorily rolled. They were sent to the United States in a good many different vessels, a few tons at a time, for they were regarded as a perilous sort of freight.

Dr. Morton has fac similes of letters, specifications and bills connected with this matter, which are to be enclosed in the larger box which is to contain the section of rail—Cardiff Western Mail.

Charms of English Waterways.

Norfolk and Suffolk possess 500 miles of inland waterways, through which rich midland lands, margined with reed and water lilies, or through low marshes, the haunts of stint, snipe, duck, whimbrel and other wild fowl; by ancient villages with grey church towers; beneath bridges, over the parapets of which old men look down into the silent waters, and finally you reach the sea from whence, if you are yachting, you pause to notice that the landscape you have left behind is marked against the horizon by a line of windmills and churches after the manner of Tennyson's "Lineolshire wolds and fens, and with faint suggestions of Holland."—Newcastle (Eng.) Chronicle.

Italy's Trade Going to Germany.

Italian trade with Germany in 1898 reached 1,725,000 lire for imports and nearly 1,920,000 for exports. The chief German goods taken by Italy which affect British trade are cotton, wool and silk goods, and metals and machinery. This last heading includes a third of all the German exports to Italy, and at one time this branch of trade was almost wholly in British hands. Germany takes nearly Italian wine year. Cremona makes a large and increasing quantity of Italian silk, while vast quantities of fruit and vegetables are now being taken by Germany from Italy.—London Mail.

How Knights Are Made.

The ceremonies at the creation of a knight have been various; the principal were a box on the ear and a stroke with a sword on the shoulder. The blow with the naked fist was in use among the ancient Normans. It was afterward changed into a blow with the flat of the sword on the shoulder of the knight, and this ceremony is still in use.

Sugar manufacturers in Queensland invariably purchase the year's crop of cane standing, and cut it at their own cost.

The Royal Army Clothing factory of Great Britain has only two commissioned officers, a director and a doctor.

RICH MAN DIES IN PAUPERS' WARD.

A West Superior Man was Not Aware that He was Worth $250,000.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Johann Mueller died in the paupers' ward at St. Mary's hospital in December, 1898. It has just been developed that he owned forty acres of land on the Mesaba range, in which he had invested the savings of years, is worth $250,000. The Carnegie interests now have an option on the land for that figure. A Catholic priest had a mortgage on the land for $800. Relatives of Mueller in Germany are trying to prove their claim to the estate.

HISTORIC LANDMARK OF STATE IS BURNED.

Old Ludington Company's Hotel at Mission Point Once Occupied by Isaac Stephenson.

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The N. Ludington's company's boarding house was totally destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is about $5000, with an insurance of $1800. It was built in 1856 and had many historical incidents connected with it. Samuel J. Tilden was a guest in it one of his ways north to look at his copper-mining property. It was located on Mission point, where there was a government trading post eight-six years ago. Ex-Congressman Isaac Stephenson resided in it in the early days and three of his children were born there. It will not be rebuilt.

SHOWED GREAT NERVE.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Charles Byrard, a brakeman on the North-Western road, fell from the top of a freight train, as it was pulling out of the city, about 5:30 o'clock last evening. When he struck the ground his right foot lay across the rail and it was cut off at the ankle.

The accident was not seen by any of the other trainmen and Byrard lay where he fell until a northbound train came along about fifteen minutes later when the injured man attracted the attention of the trainmen by waving his lantern. Byrard is about 50 years of age and has a family at Baraboo. He was walking over the top of the cars, which were icy with sleet from a storm then in progress, and in passing from one car to another he slipped and went down.

WILL BUILD A NATATORIUM.

Mr. Stout's Latest Public Enterprise for Menomonee.

Menomonee, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Stout has awarded the general contract for his proposed natatorium and gymnasium. The building will be a model one in every way. The contract is given to the Hackworth Construction company of Appleton for $41,250. A number of special contracts which will bring the price to about $60,000 are yet unlet. The work will begin May 1 and be completed by October 1. The building will be 92x132 feet, three stories above basement. It will be constructed of red brick with terra cotta trimmings, tile roof and floors and will be fireproof. It will serve as a natatorium, gymnasium, bath-house, bowling alley, clubroom, etc.

SIX GIRLS ARE ARRESTED.

Taken in Charge with Two Boys at Baraboo for Stealing Brass.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A Chicago & North-Western railway detective, J. E. Harris, caused the arrest of six girls and two boys, charged with stealing brass goods from the company.

FIVE DOLLAR BILL ISSUED IN 1776.

Valuable Relic of the Revolutionary War Days Owned by Oconomowoc Man.

Oconomowoc, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A $5 bill, issued according to an act of the Continental Congress in 1776, is a valuable relic in the hands of C. E. Palmer of this city. It is yellowish in color and measures 2 1/2 by 3 1/2 inches. On the face of the bill is a seal-like design in the Latin phrase, "Sustine et Abstine." The following words also appear on the face: "This bill entitles the bearer to receive five Spanish milled dollars, or the value thereof in gold or silver, according to a resolution of Congress, passed at Philadelphia February 17, 1776." On the opposite side and nearly in the center is an imperfect cut showing two tobacco leaves, one larger than the other. Below the cut is printed "Philadelphia: Printed by Hall and Sellers, 1776." The piece of money was a gift to Mr. Palmer by his grandfather, L. C. Palmer.

BOY ROBBED STORE FIFTEEN TIMES.

He Has Been Burglarizing Place in La Crosse for the Last Four Months.

La Crosse, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Orzo Soupe, aged 18 years, has confessed to robbing a grocery store kept by Oberst Brothers, fifteen times. The thefts were some time ago, but every means tried failed to land the burglar. One night a man slept in the store to see if he could catch the thief and the burglar came in and lugged off his booty without even awakening the detective. Saturday night Officer Horschak noticed a bunch of bananas moving suspiciously in the window as he was passing and stopped to investigate. The result was the arrest of Soupe. He said that he had been making regular visits to the store for the past four months and had also entered other places.

A 400-POUND BABY.

Elephant Born at the Ringling Brothers' Winter Quarters in Baraboo.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A baby elephant weighing 400 pounds was born at Ringling Bros' winter quarters this morning. This is an event which seldom occurs in captivity and has never before occurred in Wisconsin.

JUDGE BARCLAY IS DEAD.

Jackson County Jurist Dies at Home in Black River Falls.

Black River Falls, Wis., Nov. 19.—David Barclay, county judge of Jackson county, died Saturday night after several weeks' illness, aged 64 years. He was born in Canada, June 14, 1834, and came to Jackson county in 1868. He held the offices of town clerk and justice of the peace and county judge for the past seven years. He leaves surviving him his wife, a son, Winfred Barclay of St. Paul, and a daughter, Miss Birdie Barclay of this city.

TEACHERS MUST NOT DANCE ALL NIGHT.

Racine School Commissioner Watching to Find Out What Time They Go Home from Parties.

Racine, Wis., Nov. 19.—School teachers are considerably agitated over the action of a school commissioner who has been attending many fashionable parties and keeping track of teachers present. The commissioner desires to ascertain just how late teachers remain at these parties, saying that if they remain to an early hour in the morning they are not in proper condition to instruct pupils.

WISCONSIN MAN HELD FOR MURDER.

S. S. Sutton of Augusta is on Trial for His Life at Warren, Minn.

Warren, Minn., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—S. S. Sutton, a wealthy resident of Augusta, Wis., and who has interests in this locality, was indicted by the grand jury for the murder of W. W. Swift of Minneapolis. It is known that Mr. Swift, while looking after his interests in this section of the country, being the owner of a large farm here, died suddenly a few weeks ago. Mr. Sutton's trial is now taking place. Mr. Swift was a well-known character in Minneapolis. He was well along in years and possessed of considerable funds. His death was shrouded in mystery.

KAUKAUNA IS SUED.

Eight Suits Are Brought by Electric Light Company Against the City.

Kaukauna, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The Kaukauna Electric Light company has on the calendar of the November term of the circuit court eight cases against the city of Kaukauna. For several months past the city council has disallowed all of the company's bills for electric lighting and each month's bill has made the basis of a separate suit. The council is trying to annul the company's charter for alleged non-performance of duty within the past year.

TIMBER INSPECTOR NAKED.

James P. McDonald of Superior Appointed in Thirteenth District.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Gov. Scofield today appointed James P. McDonald of Superior timber inspector of the thirteenth district, to succeed Timothy Arkinson. McDonald was appointed to the same position a few months ago, but the question of his citizenship was raised at that time. It developed that he was technically still a citizen of Minnesota and not eligible, and the appointment was therefore delayed until the expiration of the time which made him a full citizen of Wisconsin.

HE LOVED THE WOMAN.

The Way a Pembine Man Showed His Affection.

BULLET IN HIS HEAD.

Choked Woman and Pounded Husband When He Interfered—Now in Jail at Marinette.

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Charles Messenger of Pembine, commonly known as "Dutch," is in the county jail here with a bullet wound in his head and charged with assault with intent to do great bodily harm. His arrest was the result of a row in the saloon of Frank Bush, Messenger came in the place, picked up a row with Bush's wife and attempted to choke her, when the husband ran to her rescue. Messenger attacked him with a cuspidor, wounding him in a terrible manner. Mrs. Bush then ran to a bar room and secured a revolver. She fired at Messenger and the bullet grazed his skull. The wound is not a dangerous one. Bush is in a precarious state as a result of the pounding given him by Messenger. Love for Mrs. Bush is said to have prompted Messenger to do his desperate work.

Elisha E. Thompson of Madison Was Injured in Wauwatosa Bridge Wreck.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Elisha E. Thompson, a veteran engineer of the Milwaukee road, died at his home in this city, aged 69 years. In 1835 he came to Wisconsin to take a position as engineer on the St. Paul system. He came to Madison in 1861, and this has been the home of the family ever since. About twenty-one years ago Mr. Thompson was injured in an accident, his engine going through a bridge at Wauwatosa. About the same time he was affected by creeping paralysis. Mr. Thompson is survived by his widow and one son, Charles Thompson, and four brothers and one sister living in Germany. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity.

CANT GET JUSTICE.

West Superior Has No Facilities for Handling Admiralty Cases—Deputy Marshal Wanted.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—There is a great lack of facilities provided here for handling admiralty cases. The matter has just been brought up again by an action involving sailors who came before the United States court commissioner and demanded a warrant for their captain who had, they alleged, withheld their pay. The boat was to sail within a few hours and the commissioner was compelled to inform the men he could do nothing for them because there is no deputy marshal near here and the marshal would not have time to come from Madison. The commissioner states that he has this season turned away twenty-five or thirty similar cases for similar reason.

TWO BADLY INJURED.

Fifteen Big Logs Fall on Woodsmen at Marinette—Miraculous Escape from Death.

Marinette, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Joseph Timbert and Patrick Kane, two woodsmen, were seriously injured while decking logs yesterday. The skid broke and about fifteen big logs came down on them. Their escape from death was miraculous. Timbert had one leg fractured and sustained other serious injuries. Kane had an ankle fractured and it is feared has sustained serious internal injuries.

Sheriff Working on the Eau Claire Assault Case—Two Men in the Toils.

Eau Claire, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Sheriff Chrysler arrived from Menomonee today with young man giving name of Frank Brown and claiming St. Paul as his home. He is suspected of committing the murderous assault of W. C. Johnson last night. He protests his innocence, but has been locked up. The sheriff went on to Fall Creek, where another suspect has been arrested.

ANGUISH CAUSES SUICIDE.

Ashland Man Takes Poison Because of Financial Troubles.

Ashland, Wis., Nov. 20.—A. J. Kerr, an old and respected citizen of this place, was found in a cheap lodging house last evening. An empty bottle that had contained carbolic acid was found by his side. In a letter, a man, a society young man of this city, the parent has written that the load of responsibility caused by financial indebtedness, together with a horrible mental anguish which he had suffered for days was the cause of his action. Mr. Kerr had taken a contract to cut cedar and the reverses which he met with were many.

Washington Letter.

How democrats in congress feel toward the proposition to reduce southern representation in congress and in the electoral college, which is being urged by quite a number of republicans, may be judged from these remarks of Senator Mooney: "If an attempt is made to reduce the congressional representation from the south, I for one will be willing to talk from the 3rd day of December to noon on the 4th day of March. And it won't bewind, either. It will be a speech worth listening to. I have been preparing for this fight for some time. If the republicans attempt that reduction, they might as well prepare for an extra session of congress. They will not pass their shipping bill, nor, indeed, anything else in the way of legislation." Every democratic senator and representative, who has been in Washington, holds practically the same sentiments that Senator Mooney expressed. Leading republicans, who see danger in the matter, are trying to stop the talk among the small fry about forcing this sort of legislation through congress by reminding them of the republican defeat which followed the attempts to jam the notorious force bill through congress.

It seems that the public is not to be allowed to get on the inside of whatever crookedness there has been in handling Cuban money, in addition to the known stealings of the Neely gang, if the senate committee on relations with Cuba, or rather the republican members of that committee, can prevent it, even when there is no campaign going on to be accused. It was known, and stated in this paper when the senate ordered this investigation to be made, that the committee would make no pretense even of acting until after the election, but it was not believed that the committee would decline to act at all. Yet that is what many are now saying and the talk seems to be justified. The committee held a secret meeting, after which Senator Platt, of Conn., its chairman, refused to even allow one of the newspaper men, waiting outside the committee room, to read any of the information furnished by the war department, on the expenditures and receipts in Cuba, on the ground that the information was "not complete," and stated that the committee had adjourned subject to the call of the chairman, and that he didn't know when there would be another meeting.

If Secretary Gage represents the republican financial policy, and the fact that he has been asked by Mr. McKinley to remain at the head of the treasury department during the next administration is good evidence that he does, a movement for the absolute retirement not only of the greenbacks but of all paper money issued by the government, may be expected in the near future, although the intention to do so was most vigorously denied by many republicans, during the recent campaign. Mr. Gage's position has been pretty generally known for some time, and he has just emphasized it in a lecture of finance, in which he said: "The public treasury is a poor agency for issuing paper money." There is considerable gossip in Washington concerning the candidacy for the senate, from Nebraska, of Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn. He spent the greater part of the campaign on the stump instead of in the war department and now he is likely to spend more time in Nebraska than in Washington, until the senators are elected, while his salary goes right along. In addition to being allowed to neglect his official duties, Mr. Meiklejohn wants the administration to back his candidacy for the senate. If Mr. McKinley does that, Nebraskans in Washington say he will raise the biggest sort of a row among republicans of the state.

Another official postponement of the bringing of the volunteers home from the Philippines has been announced, which is directly contrary to all the ante-election promises. It is now said that they will not begin bringing them back before the first of January and possibly not before the first of March. If not until the latter date, it will be very doubtful whether they will all get back before the expiration of their term of enlistment, July 1, 1901, although war department officials claim that they can all be brought back within four months, if necessary. If so, they will be brought back much quicker than they were carried.

Senator Harris, of Kansas, said of one of the bills which Boss Hanna has slated to go through at this session of congress: "There is much opposition in the west to the ship subsidy bill. If the ship yards are so prosperous as we are led to believe, there is no need for them to receive subsidies. In any event the farmers of the west object to being taxed for the support of the shipping interests."

At the last session of congress, the republicans would have been entirely satisfied to increase the regular army to 100,000 men, but now a lot of them are seriously talking about making the army bill which they intend putting through at this session, provide for 150,000 men or more. The re-election of McKinley and the election of a big majority in the next house seems to have turned the heads of many republicans, and the leaders of that party are going to have a hard job to keep them from going beyond all bounds in the legislation at this session.

Council Proceedings.

Council Room, November 13, 1900. Council met pursuant to adjournment, Mayor Goggins presiding. Aldermen present Wood, Lutz, Riehard, Farrish, Bunde, Otto, Anthofer, Kellogg, Oberbeck, Schnabel and Kossler.

The committee appointed to investigate the title of the C. M. & St. P. Ry. Co. to certain lands adjoining the west side market square and to confer with Ben Hansen in regard to his building a potato and ware house thereon made following report:

To the honorable the common council of the city of Grand Rapids, Wood County, Wisconsin.

We the undersigned, the committee appointed by your honorable body to investigate the title of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway Co., to certain lands adjoining the market square in the west side of the Wisconsin river and to confer with Mr. Ben Hansen in regard to the construction of a potato ware house thereon, respectfully report as follows:

We find that the C. M. & St. P. R. W. Co. owns a certain strip of land about fifty (50) feet in width on the west end and about forty (40) feet in width on the east end adjoining the said market square and we further find that they have granted the permission to E. M. Coppins & Co. to build a potato ware house thereon.

We further find that the said C. M. & St. P. R. R. Co. have moved their side track, commonly called "Garrison's spur," about ten feet farther south and that the ware house intended to be put up by the said E. M. Coppins & Co. will extend over and upon land owned by the city of Grand Rapids, composing said market square about five feet on the east end and that it will not extend to the northerly side of the land owned by the railway company on the west end but that there will be a space between the building and the south line of the land owned by the city of Grand Rapids forming the market square of about five feet and your committee gave the said E. M. Coppins & Co. permission to erect the said warehouse so that the same would extend over on to the land forming the said market square about five feet on the east end in consideration whereof the said C. M. & St. P. R. R. Co., give the city of Grand Rapids, permission to use the strip of land on the west end about five feet in width and for city market purposes.

Your committee authorized the city engineer to survey the land owned by the said St. P. R. R. Co. and he has advised us that the said railway company owns nearly all the land upon which the said ware house is now being constructed and that the only portion thereof that is not owned by the railway company is a strip of land on the northeast side of the said warehouse about five feet in width on the east end and in the shape of a triangle, the southerly line of which intersects the northerly line of the said warehouse about thirty feet westerly of the north east corner of the said warehouse so that the city of Grand Rapids acquires the use of more land for the purpose of a city market than the amount of land owned by the city of Grand Rapids upon which the said warehouse is being constructed. We have expressly instructed said Ben Hansen, agent of the said E. M. Coppins & Co. that they must take all the chances as to whether the said railway company are the owners of the land upon which said potato warehouse is being constructed and we have given them no permission to occupy any land owned by the city of Grand Rapids for the purpose of market square, only as above stated and with the express understanding that we get the use of as much land owned by the railway company for the city market as the said potato warehouse will occupy of land owned by the city of Grand Rapids for the purpose of said market square as above set forth.

F. J. WOOD, Committee.

Report accepted and ordered filed. The committee appointed to look up title of lot 13, blk 31, Neeves addition and to make arrangements for the building of a sidewalk adjoining said lot reported that they had made an agreement with Scott & Martin that they build part and the city the balance and that they would report on the title of same later.

The committee appointed to investigate the matter of building a waterworks plant for this city reported that they had obtained the services of a competent civil engineer of St. Paul who looked our city over and reported to the committee the kind of a plant he thought best for this city and made estimate as to the cost both steam and electric power and also made the city a proposition as to drawing plans and specification and to engineer the building of said plant.

The Twin City Electric Co. also made the council a proposition for the building of a co-operative waterworks plant and the running of same in connection with the electric plant. Moved and carried that the mayor appoint a committee of five together with city attorney to prepare a franchise to be granted the Twin City Electric Co. if accepted by council, for the building and running of a co-operative waterworks plant. Aldermen Farrish, Otto, Pratt, Oberbeck and Kellogg were appointed as such committee.

Petition presented asking the council to locate an electric lamp at the corner of Wyle and Madison streets, east side. Same was referred to light committee.

Alderman Lutz offered the following resolution. Resolved, that the street committee cause diagrams of the plans of the sewerage for each district in the city to be prepared, showing the lots and parcels of land, main sewers, minor sewers, man holes, catch basins and all other matter pertaining to the system; and they are hereby authorized to employ the city engineer to prepare such diagrams. Resolution adopted.

What one of our Customers Says of the

RADIANT HOME

BASE BURNER.

We never had a coal stove around the house until last Saturday. Have always used pine slabs and pieces of our neighbor's fence. They burn well, too, but the fence got all burned up, and the neighbor said he wouldn't build a new one, so we went down to Johnson & Hill Co.'s and got a coal stove. It is called the "Radiant Home," is manufactured by BLACK & GERMER of Erie, Pa., and any man that says we didn't have a radiant home at our house for about four hours last Saturday night is a Republican and a villain. You see we didn't know anything about coal stoves. We filled the Radiant Home about half full of pine fence, and, when the stuff got well to going, we filled the artesian well on top with coal. It simmered and spluttered about five or ten minutes, and all went out, and we put on an overcoat and a pair of buckskin mittens and "went out, too," to supper. We remarked in the course of the frugal meal that Johnson & Hill Co. were "froads" for recommending such a confounded refrigerator to a man to get warm by. After supper we took a piece of ice and rubbed our hands warm, and went in where that stove was, resolved to make her draw and burn if it took all the pine fence in the First ward. Our better half threw a quilt over her and shiveringly remarked that she never knew what real solid comfort was until she got a coal stove. Stung by the sarcasm in her remark, we turned every dingus on the stove that was movable or looked like it had anything to do with a draft, and pretty soon the Radiant Home began to heave up heat. It was not long before she stuttered like the new Silsby steamer. Talk about your heat! In ten minutes that room was as much worse than a Turkish bath as Hades is hotter than Ketchum's ice house. The perspiration fairly fried out of a tin water cooler in the next room. We opened the doors and snow began to melt as far up River street as the Green Bay & Western depot, and people all round the neighborhood put on linen clothes. And we couldn't stop the confounded thing. We forgot what McCamley told us about the dampers and she kept a biling. The only thing we could do was to go to bed and leave the thing to burn the house up if it wanted to. We stood off with a pole and turned the damper every way, and at every turn she just sent out heat enough to roast an ox. We went to bed supposing that the coal would eventually burn out, but about twelve o'clock the whole family had to get up and sit on the fence. Finally a man came along who had been brought up among coal stoves, and he put a wet blanket over him and crept up to the stove and turned the proper dingus and she cooled off, and since that time has been just as comfortable as possible. If you buy a coal stove you want to learn how to engineer it, or you may get roasted.

Twixt Life and Death

BY FRANK BARRETT

One afternoon she came into the room where Nessa was sitting alone, in a particularly ill-humored. Nessa could get no more than a nod or a shake of the head in reply to her observations; yet it was obvious by her manner that she had brought her knitting with the set purpose of staying there.

It had occurred to Nessa on this very afternoon that she had never told her friends who she really was, and how she had come to be an equestrienne. It struck her now that they must attribute her reticence to a want of confidence in them, or to her having done something which she was ashamed to reveal. The possibility of being so misunderstood made her cheeks burn, and she resolved that, on the very first occasion, she would tell the whole truth about herself. She expected that Grace would be dreadfully shocked to hear that she had run away from school, and got into trouble with the police at St. John's Wood, and been hunted out of Brighton; but she felt sure that Dr. Meredith—that dear, generous friend—would make allowance for her ignorance and simplicity, and see that she was not really guilty of dishonesty. And in her heart of hearts she was elated with the hope that she would like her better for knowing that she was well born, and the victim of cruel persecution, and heinous to a large fortune.

This pleasant reflection was brightening her cheeks when Mrs. Blount broke silence.

"I've sent 'em out for a drive," she said.

Nessa looked up from the page on which her eyes had been resting while her thoughts wandered elsewhere, and said she was glad; it was such a lovely afternoon for a drive.

"Yes; but he'd have been sitting in this room as if it was raining cats and dogs if I hadn't spoken out," said the old lady, in a tone of vexation. "It's the first time I've ever had to tell him what he ought to do. He'd have found it out for himself a month ago."

Nessa, wondering, looked with wide, inquiring eyes at her companion.

"Noticed what?" inquired Nessa.

"That my dear Grace is growing quieter and quieter, more thoughtful, more gentle even than she ever was. You haven't noticed that she doesn't watch by the window for her sweetheart to come, that she slips away from the room when he is here, that she is growing old-maidish in her ways. I have. And it made my heart ache when I see 'em through the blinds as they started off in the pony chaise, for they didn't look smiling into each other's face; but he looked up at this window, and she looked straight before her as if she had no lover in the world."

"Oh, do they not love each other now?" Nessa asked with a trembling voice.

"What is the matter?" echoed the old nurse, laying down her knitting. "Well, my dear, if you don't know—and I will say this, I believe you are innocent—if you don't know, it's my duty to tell you before things get past mending. You're taking Sweeney's heart away from my poor Grace. He's fallen in love with you—that's what's the matter."

This news so shocked Nessa that even before Grace returned from her ride with Sweeney she persuaded Mrs. Blount to take her with her to Brixton, if Dr. Meredith deemed her well enough to go, and, in fact, she received this permission a few days later.

CHAPTER XXIII.

Several weeks later Nessa received a letter. It gave her quite a flutter of excitement, so monotonous and dull was her everyday life at this time; but her heart beat quicker still when she perceived by the postmark that it must be from Dr. Meredith. She opened it with a feeling of hope which it would have been impossible for her to explain, having nothing to hope for. Sweeney inclosed a letter with a couple of lines:

"SWEYNE MEREDITH."

The communication was studiously brief. He could scarcely have written less; yet Nessa was not disappointed, and in the pleasure of reading it over and over again forgot the inclosure. It was clear she must acknowledge the letter, and feeling that she could think of nothing else until she had written she sat down to the task at once. She wrote the first words that came from her heart:

"Dear Mr. Meredith: I thank you for the letter. I think I can never be so ungrateful as to forget your friendship and kindness."

She could not say less than this, and she dared not say more, and so, with a sigh of regret, she put up the sheet of paper in an envelope and addressed it to the doctor. After that she went out and posted her letter with as much care as if it were the happiness of her life depended on it. This mighty business, with the flood of conjectures and bitter-sweet recollection it brought upon her, so engrossed her thought that only when she got home to Myrtle Cottage and set herself resolutely to think of something else she remembered the inclosed letter.

It was addressed, "Miss Viola Dancaister, Arcadia, West Kensington," re-addressed, "J. Fergus, Esq., International, Paris;" addressed again, "Care of Dr. Meredith, Grafton Road, Hammersmith, London;" and finally re-addressed, "Leston Park, Barmston, Yorkshire."

Opening the letter, Nessa, with awakening curiosity, turned to the signature, and found with surprise that the writer was Maud Redmond. It was dated 29 Murdock Square, Euston Road, Tuesday, and ran on thus:

"My Darling Nessa: I do not know

whether you are living or dead. For the last week I have been in London, seeking you everywhere in a state of mind perfectly indescribable. I have suffered tortures since that dreadful night. I must have been mad to run away as I did; but what wonder when Fergus told me I had killed you? I own that the fear of being publicly accused of murdering my darling friend terrified me, and I ran away to save myself. Whatever faults I may have, no one can say I am a fool, and only an idiot could have attempted to injure you in my position—I had everything to lose, and nothing to gain by it. For did you not share all you had with me, and did I not give up my home, position and everything else for your sake? But why should I seek to clear myself from such a monstrous charge when I am sure that you would be the last to harbor an unjust thought or ungenerous reflection? No, darling, whether you live or whether you are in that state where all secrets are known, it is all the same: you know that I am innocent—you know that I am to be pitied.

"I shall send this letter to Arcadia in the last hope that it may be forwarded to you if you live. And, oh, for pity's sake, write to me if you receive it and put an end to my agony. Let me come and look at your sweet face once more—let me slave for you—help you in some way to show how truly I love you, and would repair the chances I have lost. It is the last kindness I ask of you, my darling. Your most unhappy

Mrs. Redmond had not yet risen from her bed in the second floor back of 29 Murdock square—it was not yet midday—when her landlady, entering the room without ceremony, jogged her shoulder and said, hurriedly:

"Here—get up! The young lady's come. Drove up in a hansom."

"Is she alone?" asked Mrs. Redmond, springing out of bed with blinking eyes.

"Yes, you ain't goin' to have her up here, are you?"

The place was sufficiently wretched and squalid to excite compassion, but the general effect was not picturesque—not the picture of distress which an experienced stage manager would set before his audience, and Mrs. Redmond knew her business and the character of the girl she had to play to as well as anyone. The crust of a pork pie, the remains of last night's supper, stood on the dressing table with a bottle of hair-wash, a saucer of violet powder, and a paper of rouge. On the table—drawn up for convenience to the side of the bed—was a lamp without a shade, a tray with the remains of the morning's breakfast, a pile of hairpins and some odds and ends of finery.

"I've showed her into the front sitting room," said the landlady, "but she ain't sent away the cab, so you'd better look sharp, my dear. What are you looking for now?"

"My shoes. Look under those things on the chair. That's just the way when you want a thing."

"You are such an untidy lady. Here, take mine, my dear; they'll do to slip down in."

"Dip the corner of the towel in the water jug. Where's that braided jacket? Never mind; give me the towel. Now look about for that waterproof."

"Here it is, my dear! all creased up, anyhow. You ain't going to put any stuff on your face, are you?"

"Not likely," replied Mrs. Redmond, as she stood before the glass wiping her face with the towel.

"Oh, that's all right. I tell you I can twist her round my finger, and you see, she's come just as I said she would, and the hansom shows she has got the money. How do I look?" She turned, assuming a woe-begone expression.

"You're as good as a play," chuckled the landlady, with her hand to her mouth. "You'll do."

Entering the sitting room where Nessa was sitting by the window, Mrs. Redmond started as if she had seen a wraith, and then tottering forward a few steps she fell on her knees, and stretched out her hands with an imploring cry. Nessa went quickly to her side and put her arms round the woman's neck.

"Nessa, my darling Nessa," gasped Mrs. Redmond, taking the girl's hand and smothering it with kisses. "Oh, tell me that you forgive me. No—I will not rise till I know I am forgiven."

"There is nothing to forgive. You did not mean to hurt me. Oh, I am sure of that as you yourself must be."

"Thank heaven for this!" murmured Mrs. Redmond, devoutly, bending her head and clasping her hands. "But I forgot you when I should have stood by you—think of that."

"I would rather think of anything else—of how, for instance, you stood by me when I was in greater need. There, do get up. It distresses me a great deal more to see you like this than to think of your running away."

Mrs. Redmond allowed herself to be comforted, and gradually came round to a state of mind less embarrassing in its effect upon Nessa.

"You have given me strength," she said, faintly. "In a little while I shall be able to look for work." The hollowness of her voice frightened Nessa.

"You were very poor when you wrote to me. Have you had anything to eat to-day?" she asked. Mrs. Redmond shook her head, with a plaintive smile.

"But I had some tea and bread last night," she murmured gratefully.

"I feared it was so," said Nessa, "and I have kept the hansom waiting. We will go out and get some dinner."

"I can't, my darling. I have nothing but the things I stand in. The clothes I brought from Brussels have been taken by the woman of this house for my rent, and I have nothing to redeem them."

"I have," said Nessa, eagerly putting her hand in her pocket. "I am quite rich

—see. Mr. Fergus paid me two hundred pounds and I have brought half of it for you."

CHAPTER XXIV.

Since her first call on Mrs. Redmond Nessa made several others, sometimes in the afternoon, but more frequently in the evenings, and, though she seemed feverishly excited when she returned to her home, she would rouse herself no explanation to Mrs. Blount.

One afternoon, while she was thus absent, Grace called to see her, and Mrs. Blount, uneasy at Miss Dancaister's behavior, told Grace about it. The latter, scenting some grave and unknown peril to Nessa, left Mrs. Blount, almost abruptly, and from the nearest postoffice dispatched the following telegram to Sweeney: "Come at once. You are needed."

Nessa was dressing to go out the next morning, when the maid knocked at her door and said:

"Please, miss, will you come into the sitting room. Missis says, before you go out."

"Yes, I will come," Nessa answered, "almost directly."

Mrs. Blount had told her briefly, when she came in, that Grace had called in the afternoon to see her, and now she expected to be scolded for her irregularities.

She went downstairs painfully conscious of her faults, and hoping that Mrs. Blount would forgive her. The sitting room door was partly open; she entered, closed the door, and, turning to the table where Mrs. Blount invariably stationed herself on serious occasions, she started with an exclamation of astonishment. Sweeney stood before her!

For a couple of moments they stood silent, and still facing each other, and marking the change a few weeks had produced. But her wonder was greater than this, for Grace had prepared him for what he saw, while she was ignorant of the struggle which had exhausted him. The boyish gaiety was gone from his face, the carelessness from his manner; he looked quite old and severe, despite the softness in his deep eyes.

"You have come to scold me," she said, in a tone of contrition.

"Yes—partly," he answered, but there was no anger in his voice, and, taking both her hands in his, he held them as if he meant to keep them forever, looking into her eyes with such tender earnestness and deep solicitude that her heart fluttered with a wild, uncontrollable joy.

"Don't you think I ought to scold you?" he asked, after a moment's pause, still holding her hands in his.

"I have done wrong," she said, thinking of the pain she had given Mrs. Blount; "she has been very kind to me, and I have tried her patience shamefully; and, instead of asking her to pardon me, I have been silent and morose, not treating her as a friend at all."

"Is she the only one you have failed to treat as a friend? Have you kept your promise to me? Why didn't you write to me and say 'I want your advice'?"

"But I am quite well now. There is nothing the matter with my health."

"Ah, you will think of me only as your doctor. Well, as your doctor, let me assure myself that I can do nothing for you. Sit down—no, not there, with your back to the light; here, where I may see your face." He seated her, and, still holding her hands, stood before her, looking down.

"Your eyes are sunk, your cheek is thin; there are signs of suffering, pain, fatigue about your mouth," he said.

"It is fatigue. I went to the theater last night with a lady friend. It was very late when I came home."

"Yes. It was nearly one when you put out your light."

"You have heard all about me."

"No, not all. I know that you have been seeking happiness and found but a very poor substitute for it. I know that, poor as the substitute is, it makes you for a time forget some great trouble; but, I can only guess what that trouble is, and I must make sure of it before I dare to prescribe a remedy."

She trembled under his fixed gaze.

VISIONS SEEN IN SLEEP.

A dream about marriage denotes poverty and other misfortunes.

A dream of a lion means you will shortly get a profitable office.

A dream that you are bleeding indicates the loss of property or reputation.

To dream of being dressed in white means success in your next undertaking.

To dream of picture cards indicates that you will be married to a wealthy person.

To dream of finding a pocketbook or purse betokens unexpected success of some kind.

If you dream of a goose you may expect soon to see a friend who has been long absent.

A dream of being at a fair means you will soon be swindled by a pretended friend.

To dream of a monkey signifies that you will be deceived by the object of your affections.

To dream about a sheet of white paper means that you will marry a person you do not love.

Dreaming of an adversary signifies that you are to overcome obstacles which are in your way.

To dream of a swallow signifies that you will soon make the acquaintance of a strange young lady.

To dream that a policeman has you in charge is a sign that you will escape from some impending evil.

To dream that you are hungry means that you will rise to eminence and wealth by your own exertions.

To dream that you are kissing somebody means that an unknown friend will shortly confer upon you a great benefit.

A dream of ringing bells means either a speedy marriage among your acquaintances or some good news to yourself.

A FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

Miss Hehardt of Ahnapee Burned to Death at Sturgeon Bay.

MANY NARROW ESCAPES.

Guests Carried Out of Burning Building by Firemen—Lost All Their Belongings.

Sturgeon Bay, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Fire early this morning destroyed the Hotel French, one life being lost in the conflagration. At about 2 o'clock fire was discovered in the kitchen of the hotel by Mrs. French, wife of the proprietor. She immediately turned in an alarm and hurriedly went from room to room awakening the sleeping guests. Even though she had not taken time to dress, too late. The fire spread with great rapidity. The building was of brick veneered, to which was being added an addition to increase the capacity.

The hotel was crowded and most of the guests were obliged to make their escape in their nightgowns and some were taken from the second-story windows by the firemen.

In the new part of the building Miss Hehardt had a room over the ordinary department, where the fire originated. She was awakened by a servant and she dressed herself. She could have escaped, but thinking she could save her belongings returned to her room, where she was evidently overcome by smoke and afterwards cremated.

As it was supposed that Miss Hehardt had escaped, no effort was made to rescue her until the discovery was made that she was missing, but it was then too late. Her body was recovered from the ruins this morning.

The dead woman was a guest and had come here for medical treatment from Ahnapee only a few days ago. She was about 30 years old.

The hotel, which is total, will aggregate about $8000, with only insurance for half that amount.

PROMISE IS SOON TO BE FULFILLED.

Manitowoc will Soon Have a $700,000 Elevator—Northern Grain Company's Plans.

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—A promise, which was made by the Northern Grain company to the city council, when the question was up as to what the company could be taxed if the assessed valuation was reduced it would build a large elevator is about to be realized. The plans are all drawn and submitted to the company. The elevator will cost $700,000 and have a capacity of 1,500,000 bushels. It will be the latest machinery. It has not yet been selected. It will probably be on the North-western Western property on the south lake front. At the time when the board of review was in session the company was asked to reduce the assessed valuation. The board was in doubt and the company sent a telegram to Mayor Rahr stating that they had in contemplation the building of an elevator in either Omaha or this city. If the assessment was lowered Manitowoc would get the elevator. The assessment was lowered and the company has kept its promise.

KILLED BY A GIRL.

Frank Goerke is Accidentally Shot on the Scheets Farm Near Waukesha.

Waukesha, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—The 16-year-old daughter of John D. Scheets, who lives in the town of New Berlin, shot and killed Frank Goerke, 13 years old, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Goerke and the two Scheets girls had been practicing target shooting. The target was placed against an old building which was back of the house. After they had been practicing a while the older girls and the house and the building were placed against the building, and Goerke went into the building against which the target was placed. The girl, when she came back, did not know this, and fired the rifle at the target. The bullet passed through the boards and struck the heart of Goerke, killing him instantly.

Sheriff King was notified of the affair and Justice of the Peace W. A. Pierce was summoned. He called a jury, consisting of H. M. Brigham, C. J. Patterson, George Foran, Dr. D. Roberts, A. J. Baldwin and W. E. Steinhilber, who visited the place of the accident and adjourned until this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Frank Goerke, who formerly was employed by George Luber, had been working for the past two years at Mr. Scheets' and was greatly attached to the family. The girl who did the shooting is nearly crazed by the affair. The remains were brought to this city. No arrangements have been made for the funeral.

HUNTER KILLS HIMSELF.

Ice on River Breaks Under Man's Weight and Gun Discharges as He Falls.

Merrill, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Fred Sell was found dead yesterday on the ice of Copper river, five miles north of here, by several hunters, who spent the day near the place. Attracted by procloned howls of a dog they discovered the remains. He had evidently been crossing the river when the ice broke through and in going down the hammer of his gun caught on the edge of the ice. The bullet struck him under the chin, shattered his brain and passed out behind the ear.

NAVIGATION ON ST CROIX.

Stillwater Boom and Dam Company is Said to Interfere.

Oseola, Wis., Nov. 19.—Capt. John A. Keat of Stillwater is here getting testimony regarding the navigation conditions of the St. Croix river and also regarding the manner in which the Stillwater Boom Dam company has acted toward navigation on the stream. The captain has endeavored to run steamers on the river stream for thirty years, but has encountered a great obstacle in the Boom Dam company, which has on many occasions cut off the water at its dam and allowed the captain and his band of excursionists to become stranded on sandbars.

MISTAKEN FOR A DEER.

Dudley Man Shot Down by a Hunter—Not Fatally Wounded.

Merrill, Wis., Nov. 19.—[Special.]—Leon Ulrich of Dudley, a summer resident here, was shot in the arm Sunday by Edward Head, who took the man for a deer. The bullet pierced Ulrich's clothes but passed out without fatally injuring him.

AGENT AND MONEY CANNOT BE FOUND.

Z. E. Borst of Combined Locks Disappears with Funds of North-Western Railway.

Appleton, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Z. E. Borst, station agent for the Chicago & North-Western road at Combined Locks, and an amount of money variously estimated at from $500 to $5000, are missing from their accustomed place in the depot and officers about the country are notified to be on the watch for him. It is not possible to tell how much money was taken, as it is believed he has been taking money for some time. The traveling auditor is at present checking up the account. The shortage was discovered by a partial examination made by H. C. Wink, the traveling auditor who discovered that something was wrong and asked Borst some questions. The agent acknowledged that he was $100 short, but promised to make it good. With this object in view he was allowed to go home and was seen to enter his house. Since that time two days ago nothing has been heard of him. The police are of the opinion that Borst is hiding in Appleton.

SAYS ENGAGEMENT WAS BROKEN OFF.

Manitowoc Married Man Files His Answer in Breach of Promise Case.

Manitowoc, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Walter M. Joyce, the young attorney of this city who has been sued for $5000 damages by Miss Mary Berg of Kewanee for breach of promise to marry, has filed an answer in which he admits having been engaged to Miss Berg, but denies that the time for the marriage was fixed. The answer alleges that during the winter of 1898-99, the plaintiff at St. Vincent's hospital, in the city of Green Bay, underwent a surgical operation, in consequence of which the plaintiff was physically incapable of and unfit for the fulfillment of the marriage agreement, and that on August 11, 1899, in the town of Rockland, Brown county, shortly after the return of the defendant from college, it was then and there mutually agreed and understood between defendant and plaintiff that the agreement to marry was annulled and declared void by mutual withdrawal of the respective promises and that the defendant relied upon the agreement so made and married another. The defendant further alleges that the plaintiff never asked him to marry her since the meeting in Rockland above referred to.

BISHOP ON RITUALISM.

Grafton Says that Oshkosh Minister Has Perfect Right to His Views on Subject.

Fond du Lac, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Bishop Grafton had no opinion to express on Rev. Mr. Greenwood's reported criticism in Trinity church, Oshkosh, Sunday, of the ceremonies attending the consecration of Bishop Vetter at St. Ignace.

After reading the report of the sermon in the Evening Wisconsin last evening, the bishop's face, which is never more striking than when wreathed in smiles, fairly beamed, as he good-naturedly and heartily said: "Free country? We all have a right to our own opinions. We will all ways have the low churchman and the high churchman, and we can do each other good. We can learn from each other. It is well that it is so. No, I would not take it upon myself to criticize Father Greenwood for his stand. As a diocese, the Fond du Lac diocese is almost unit and we have the greatest harmony."

Bishop Grafton was then asked "if the church allowed the use of vestments and the reformation?" In answer he said:

"The reformation movement was necessity and to its great principles of its appeal to antiquity all the sons of the church are loyal. It is a mistake to suppose that the reformation was a movement confined to a few years, or to the reign of King Henry VIII. It was a movement that commenced in 1530 and lasted to the return of the Stuarts in 1662. It was a double movement. First, against the extravagant claims of the papacy, resulting in an open Bible and services in the vernacular, changing the forms and discipline of the church, which allowed the marriage of the clergy and giving back the cup of the holy communion to the laity, and second, against the Puritans, who, when in power, abolished the prayerbook, episcopacy and all liturgical discipline, and that was beautiful in worship. The final outcome was the book of prayer, as we substantially have it, put forth in the year 1662."

"The church never did away with the ancient vestments. A rubric to be found in the English book of common prayer authorizes their use. In a photograph taken of the ministers of the bishop's jubilee officiating at the Queen's jubilee we have all the bishops in cope and all the canons of Westminster abbey also, among the bishops was the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Thompson, the low church Archbishop of York, Dr. Temple, then the bishop of London and now archbishop of Canterbury."

"Of course these vestments symbolize the teaching that is embodied in all through the prayer book from beginning to end of sacerdotalism that is expressed in the words, 'priest, altar and sacrifice.' The American book of common prayer contains these words and all churchmen loyal to the prayer book accept them."

"No one is disturbed by the vestments of Romanism. It is only used like some political cries as a shield behind which to shelter one's self, or to playing to the galleries to increase one's popularity."

TO HAVE FINE LABORATORIES.

Physics Department at University of Wisconsin is Being Improved.

Madison, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Wisconsin university will soon have one of the best physics laboratories in the country. The old mechanical engineering drafting department is being renovated and will be fitted up with large slate tables for experimental and sketching purposes. Considerable new apparatus will be added.

ARRESTED AT PRISON GATE.

Two Men Wanted at Hurley Charged with Forgery.

Waupun, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Sheriff Boone of Hurley was in the city yesterday and arrested Henry S. More and Lawrence Cunningham as they left the prison after serving short sentences. They are wanted to answer to a charge of forgery and burglary.

Teachers to Meet at Duluth.

West Superior, Wis., Nov. 20.—Superior teachers are preparing to participate in the meeting of the Lake Superior Teachers' association at Duluth November 30 and December 1.

BELOIT PASTOR DENIES CHARGES.

Returns from Europe and is Thunderstruck at Finding He Has Been Removed.

Beloit, Wis., Nov. 20.—Rev. R. A. W. Einesedel, pastor of the First German Lutheran church of this city, who went to Germany on vacation, has returned. Mr. Einesedel knew nothing of the charges against him until he reached Beloit and was thunderstruck. He also learned that the church had officially severed its relation with him without giving him a chance to defend himself. He says that he has been guilty of no act unbecoming a pastor. Some think the congregation will reinstate him, although they have selected his successor.

TRIES TO KILL HER NEW BORN BABY.

Young Elephant at Baraboo to be Raised on Cow's Milk—Event in Circus Circles.

Baraboo, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—Alice, the mother of the baby elephant born at the winter quarters of Ringling's circus yesterday, does not like her offspring and tried to kill it. The keepers saved the young animal and took it away from its infuriated mother. A fresh milk cow was secured at once, and, though somewhat frightened, became wet nurse after a few hours. The baby weighs 400 pounds and is strong and healthy and bids fair to thrive.

This is the only elephant born in America. Circusmen and the keepers of animals in zoological gardens have never before been fortunate enough to secure the big animal, except by importing them from Asia and Africa. It has always been asserted that elephants do not breed even in their native climate when domesticated. The mother of the new baby is Alice. She has been a member of the herd for six years. Before that she had traveled a number of years with a wagon show. Alice is about 35 years old. The father is Baldy. He is more than 50 years old, and said to be the largest elephant now in captivity.

SUICIDE OF AGED MAN.

Weyauwega, Wis., Nov. 20.—[Special.]—George Washington Taggart, Sr., committed suicide by hanging himself in the barn with a halter. Mr. Taggart was in his eighty-seventh year and had become quite deaf, and was almost blind. His wife died last year, aged 84 years. Since then Mr. Taggart had failed rapidly.

Mr. Taggart was born in Cortland county, N. Y., February 22, 1813. In 1836 he came West and settled in Chicago, working as a carpenter at that place and at Racine. He settled upon a farm in Rochester, Racine county, in 1838, and soon after became the second postmaster of the village. He taught the first school in western Racine county. He came to Lind, this county, in 1849 with a party of six who were the first to make claims here. He became postmaster of Lind. Mr. Taggart was elected the first county surveyor of this county in 1851, and held the office of undersheriff, sheriff, deputy sheriff, assessor and justice. In 1857 he moved to Weyauwega with his family. He was married at Ypsilanti, Mich., in 1837, to Miss Eunice L.
